CATCH THE WAVE

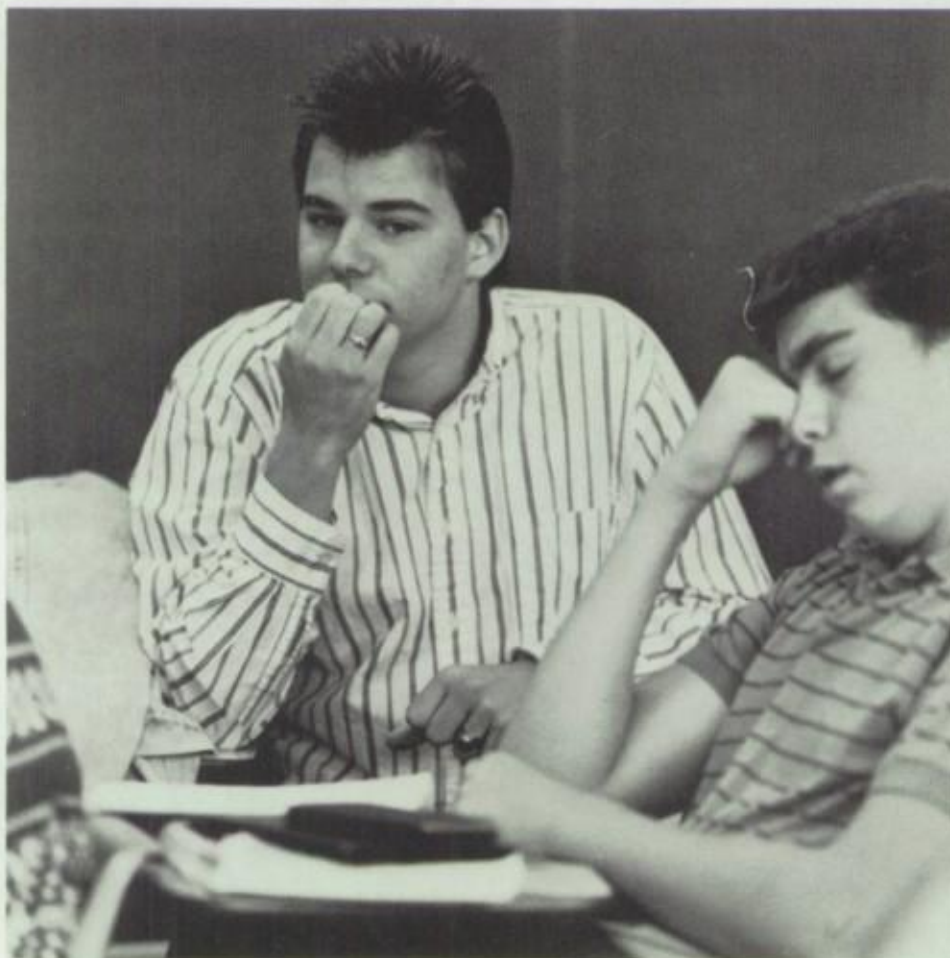

Before you know it, the year is over. Do you remember getting up for the first day of school? Yeah, that snooze button on the alarm sure is a handy item. It's the greatest gadget since the door knob. But getting back to the point, how much can you honestly say you remember? What about fifty years from now?

Some of us will get married and raise a family. Others may decide to lead the playboy single life. A few might become the future world leaders, while others just drop out of existence. The possibilities go on.

But no matter what, there will come a time when we will talk about the "good old days". So you might climb up to the attic, look in the corner for the chest hiding your high school treasures, take out the diploma and "MEAN GREEN" T-shirt, and finally dig out your old yearbooks. After blowing off the dust, you finger through. "God it's been awhile," you think. "Man did we party that night we kicked the --- out of Marist. Here's the prom picture of Mary and me. Now she had a cute — smile." Slowly the good times come

Well, without further adieu, let me introduce my point. You're not going to remember all the nutty things you did during what are probably the four best years of your life. So to help you bore your children and grandchildren as you rock back and forth on the front porch, we are providing you with a small history book of your glory days. The more that you "caught the wave", the more memories you have to share.

WAVE OF EXCELLENCE

Academics represents the basis for the existence of school. Without academics, the educational institution would serve as a penitentiary to keep the stereotypical teenager of sex, drugs, and rock-n-roll off the streets. Unfortunately to many of us academics is not only a means of torture for the teacher, it is also an important part of our growth as mature adults and intelligent leaders of society.

In this section various aspects of academic life at St. Patrick High School will be seen. The purpose is to reveal the importance, no matter how boring it may seem, of academics in our careers as high school students.

Gary Zalesny and Frank Zurowski work on programs for their computer projects during homeroom.

A Wave of Academic Help

Upon reaching high school, students immediately learn how to become responsible and mature adults. However, in order to mature, students must face numerous questions and problems about their futures. These puzzling questions enhance students to better prepare themselves for the competitive demands of the adult world. As students ask questions about what they want to do in their lives and what kind of person they want to become, the experience of an adult to advise them is extremely important.

At St. Patrick High School, students are fortunate to have the opportunity in seeking answers to their problems through the help of the guidance counselors at school. Their duties are focused mainly in guiding students through their courses and career planings.

If students are confronted with uncertainties, they can always visit the student services office, where they are encouraged to use the various information offered.

For many students, their major concern is how to succeed without trying. However, Brother David Pieters advises, "The bottom line is study, and learn how to study. Study is to academic achievement what a foundation is to a building. You can't put up a skyscraper without a foundation and deep pilings."

Therefore, with the help of the student services, the students of St. Patrick are better able to direct their promising careers in the right direction.

Tide of Decisions

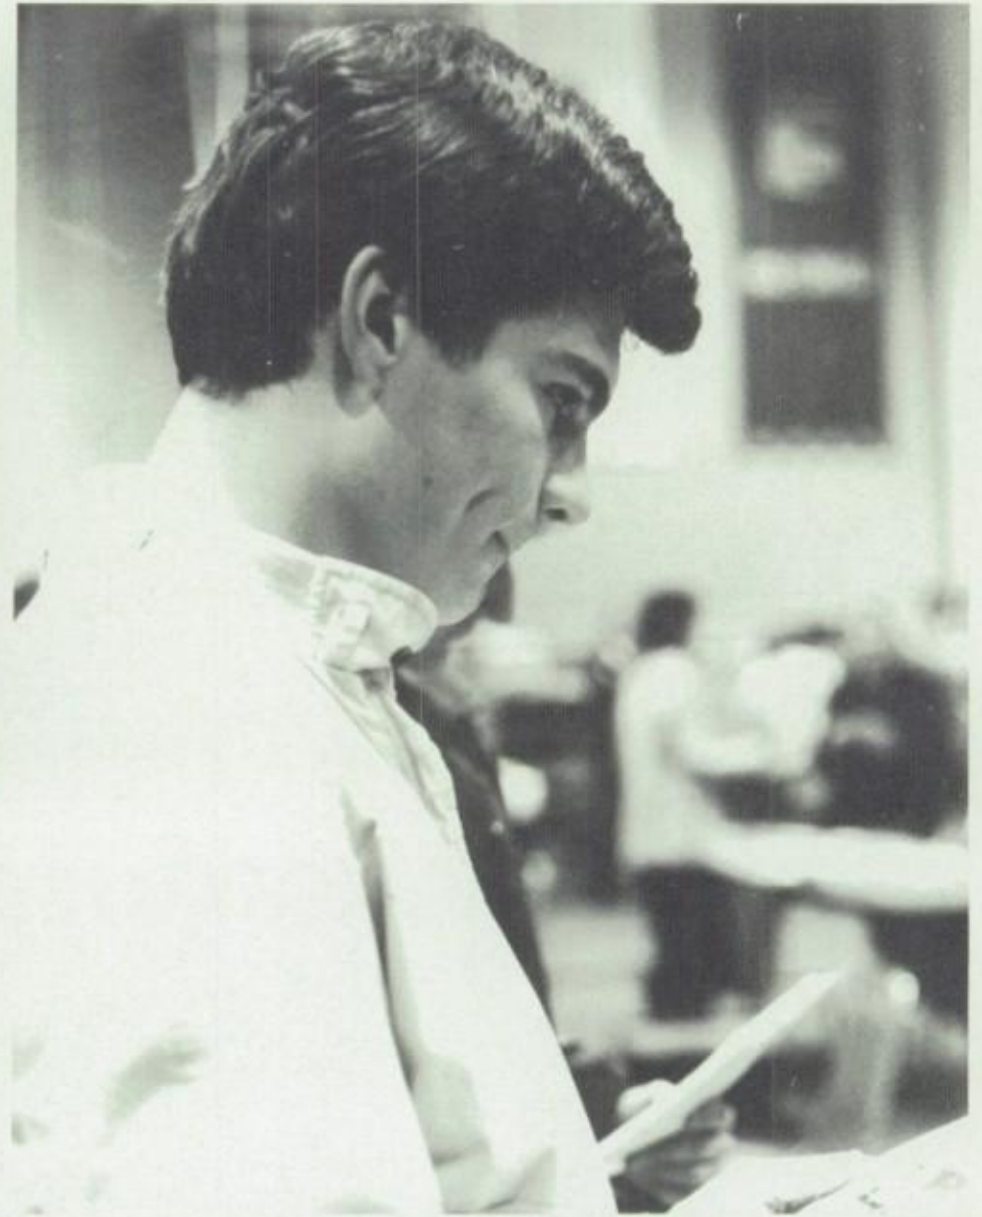

One of the reasons why St. Pats offers College Night to the upperclassman is to give him the opportunity to actually talk with a representative from a college without having to visit one.

Brother David Galinski, coordinator of the affair, invited 40 colleges to attend of which only 35 came and presented their information. "I really don't find any reason why a junior or senior can't set aside one hour to come and learn about the colleges.", said Br. D. Galinski in regards to the turn-out of students.

Overall, the number of students that attended this year increased, but if more had attended then many of the students would have had their questions answered. Instead, they had to badger and pester their counselors about trivial information. "I really encourage juniors and seniors to take advantage of College Night and Financial Aid Night each year.", concluded Br. D. Galinski.

Brian Cychosz and his parents give their undivided attention to a representative.

Senior Ken Ottaviano and Juniors Joe Sartin and Alex Jeschke look into the possibilities of an army career.

The idea of choosing a college seems puzzling to junior John Eaton.

Senior Tony Marasco fills with elation as a Lewis representative explains the curriculum.

Catch the Merit

A vital part of community relations at St. Patrick High School is the encouragement of academic value among gradeschool students. The Scholastic Bowl, consisting of seventh and eighth grade teams from area schools, did just that. Conceived by Mr. Schmidt, run and moderated through Mr. Renner and Mr. Catalano, the contest also allowed potential grade school students to become familiar with our school and what it offers.

Members of the St. Genevieve, St. Ladislaus, St. Priscilla, and St. Tarcissus scholastic teams competed for prizes by answering academic questions. St. Ladislaus' team won the 1987 Scholastic Bowl.

Sharing the Tide

A great way for St. Patrick High School to show the academics, sports, and extracurricular activities they offer is through the Open House. Two days were set aside for visitors and prospective Patsmen to view displays of the many departments, organizations, and clubs at our school. Faculty members conducted tours through the campus while the Parents Club treated the visitors with refreshments as well as information on their activities.

Open House is just one way St. Pats makes available, the opportunity for others to distinguish our program from that offered at other schools.

A Helpful A.C.T.

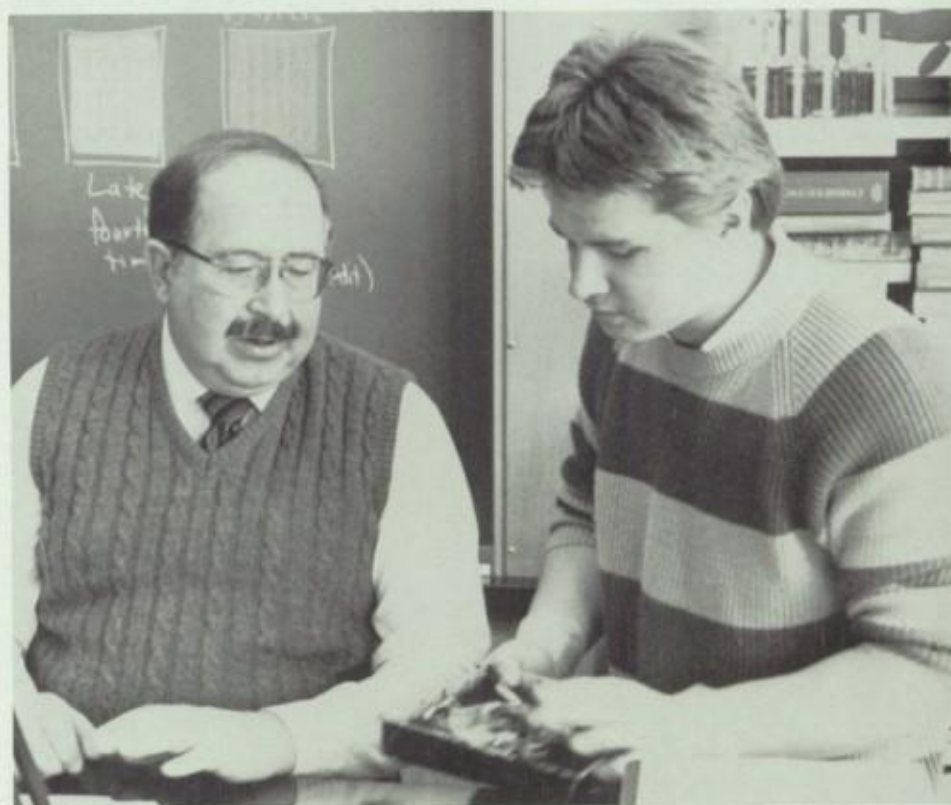

One of the new opportunities given to students to better prepare themselves for the American College Test was the A.C.T. Preparation Course. Headed by Br. John Vietoris the program had been designed to serve two major functions. First, to help the students improve their test scores. Second, to help the student approach the test with familiarity to its structure, so that he may feel relaxed and know what to expect. The course also taught the students the appropriate time that should be allotted for each question and the most logical situation to guess an answer.

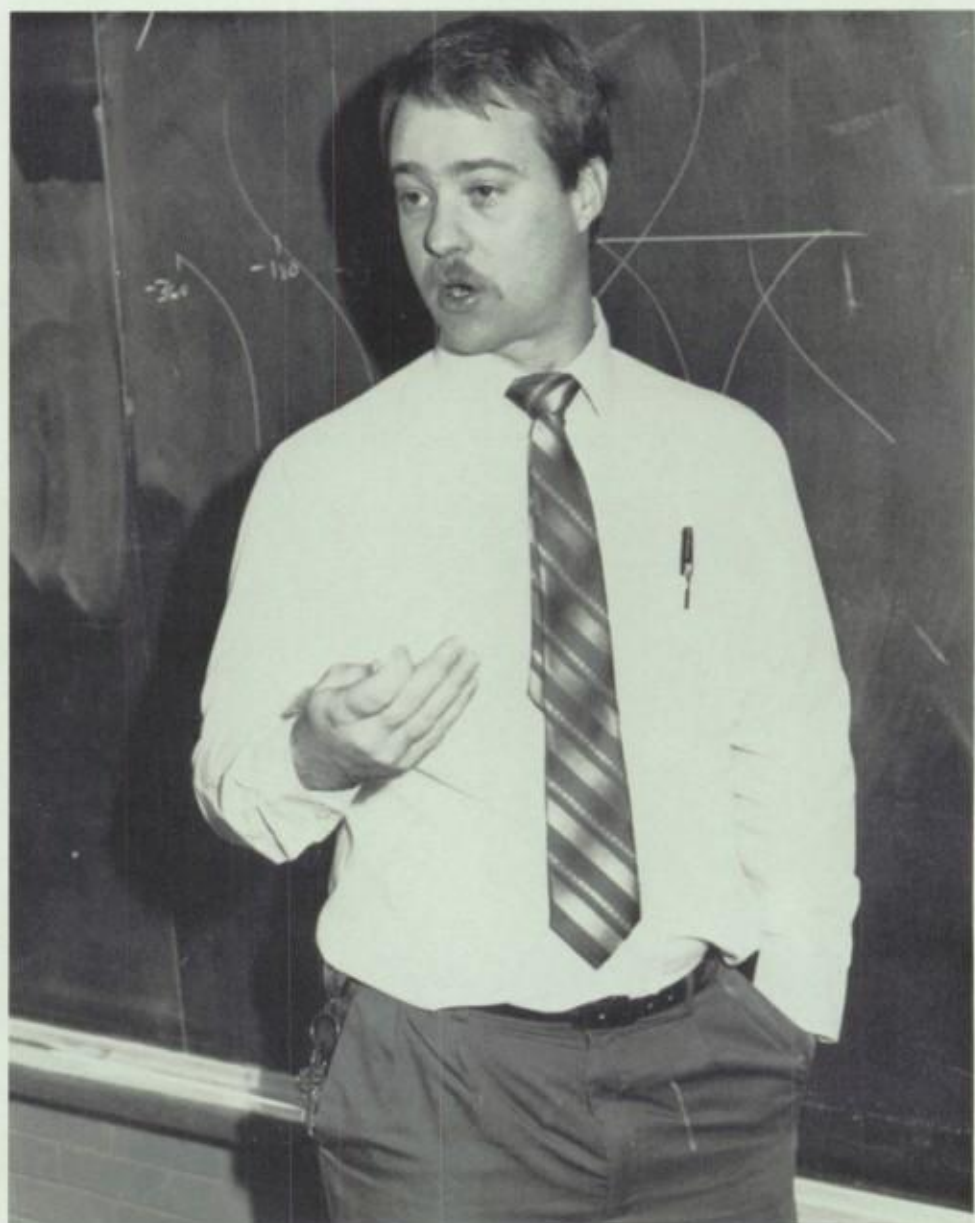

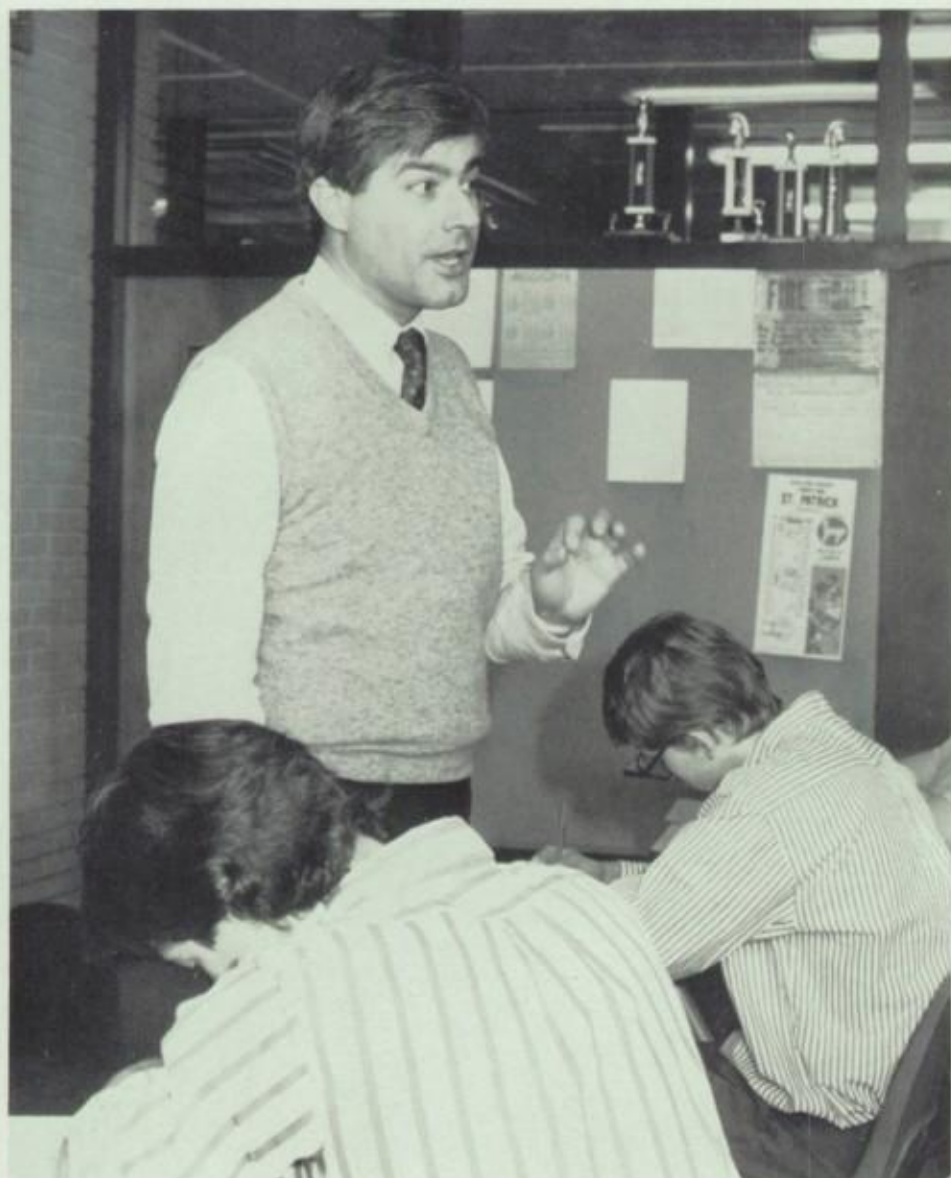

The course ran for five weeks, covering a new subject each week. Br. Konrad Diebold taught English, Br. John Vietoris instructed social studies, Mr. Jeff Troxel inculcated math, and Mr. Gordon Will educated the students about the natural sciences.

For the most part, the students and teachers in the course felt optimistic about its effects. Despite the overall preparation for the test, Br. John Vietoris believes the best preparation for the A.C.T. is the everyday knowledge a student acquires in the classroom.

Mr. Will helps Bob Lesinski with his Biology assignment on the anatomy of a frog.

Mr. Troxell gives the juniors a better interpretation of the mathematical problems that would be encountered on the A.C.T.

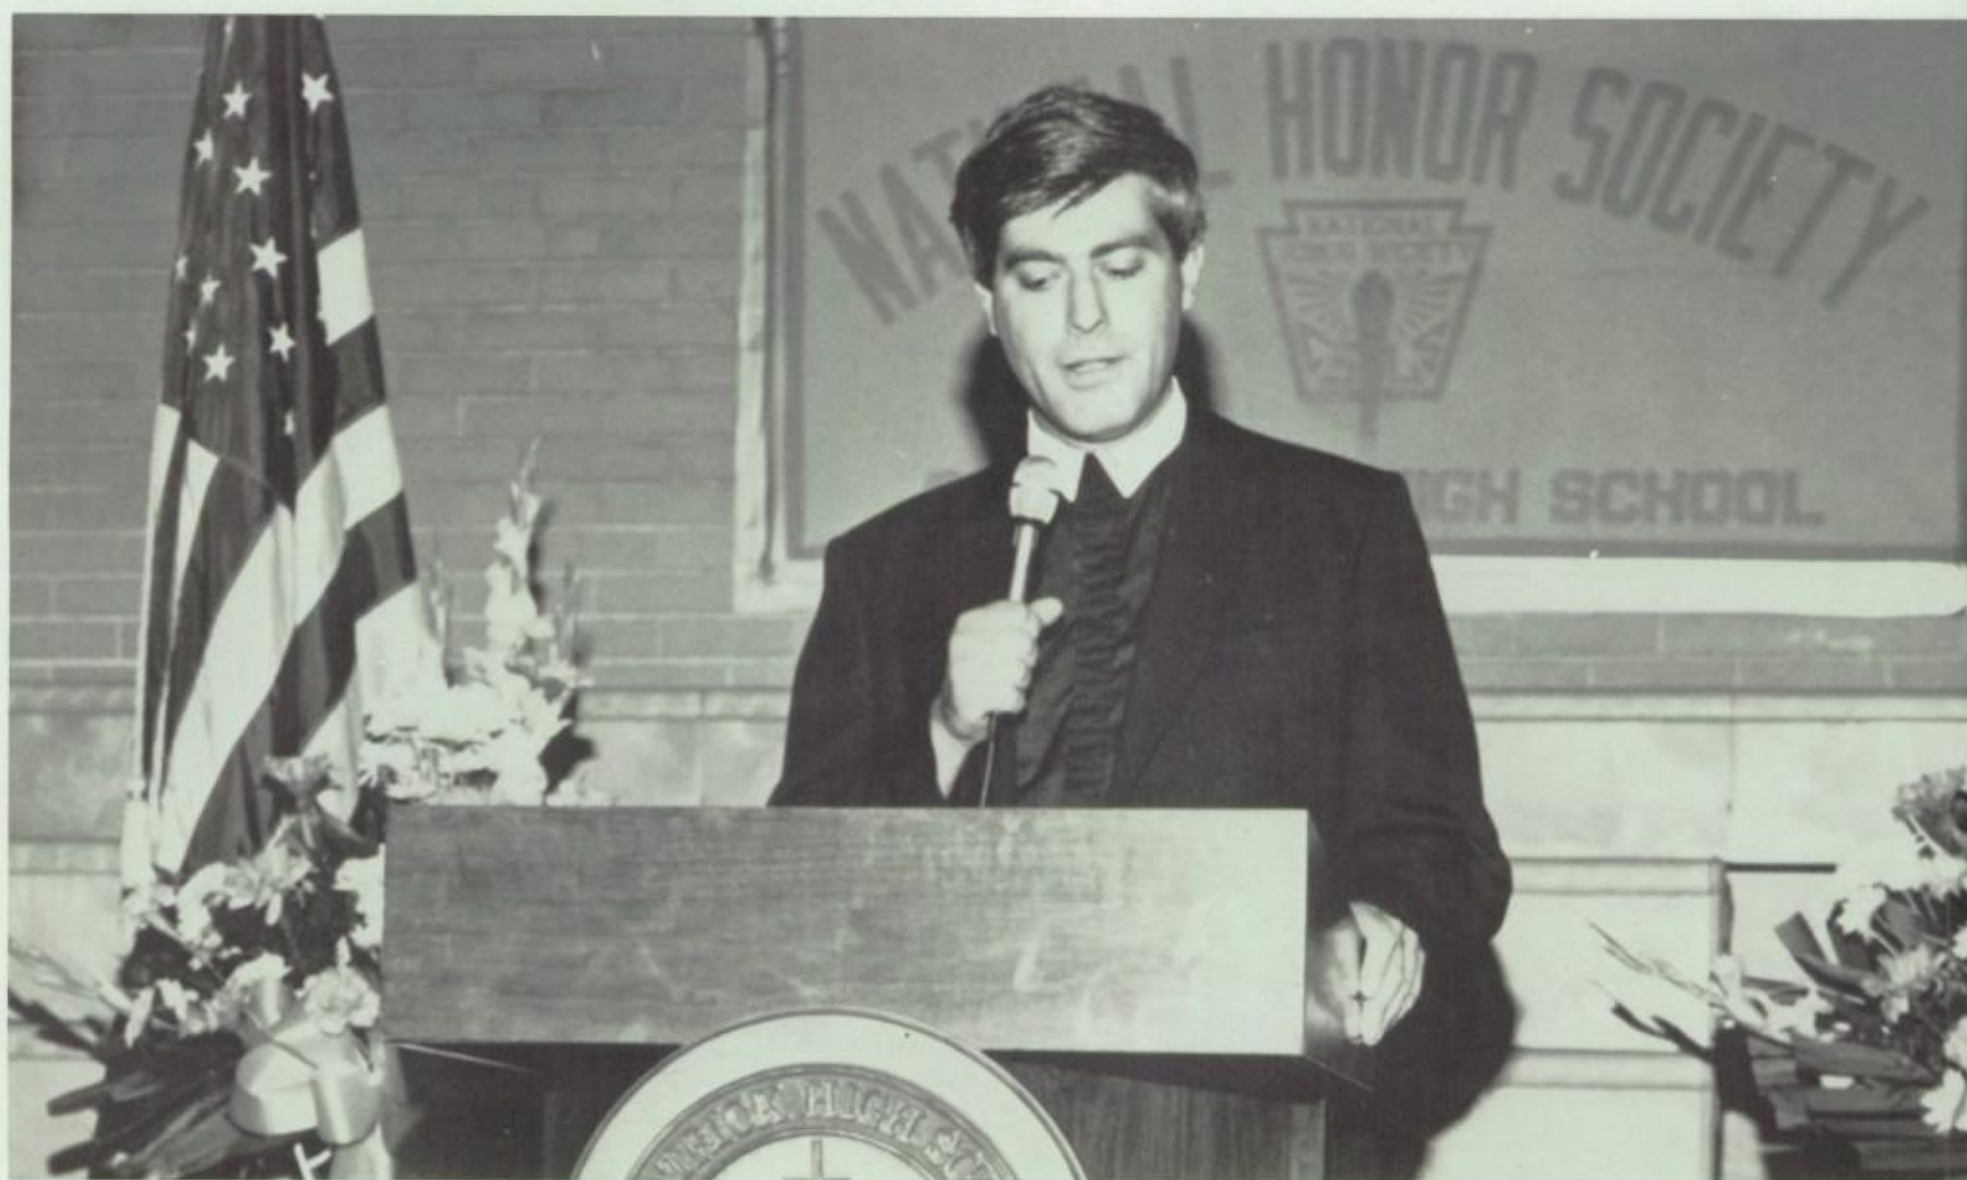

Students Help Students

The sole purpose of tutoring at St.Pat's is to provide assistance to students who need help in courses they are struggling with. The members of the National Honor Society use their scholastic talents as tutors in the program. Br. John Vietoris, moderator of the tutoring program, prides in the cooperation of the National Honor Society members. "I see the tutoring program as fulfilling a major goal of the N.H.S. As an organization, the N.H.S. believes that their best contribution to the school should be focused at trying to improve its academic climate. I believe tutoring is the main way this is done.", said he.

La Societe Honoraire De Français

A new scholastic institution had been formed this past year ... the French National Honor Society. Mrs. Chiparo, head of the French curriculum at St. Pat's, established the chapter through her inspiration and organization. Only the students who had maintained a "B" average throughout their study of the French language were allowed to apply for membership. The applications of those who had applied were reviewed by a special panel. The students that were chosen as the first members of the French National Honor Society included: Juniors; Roger Connolly, Don Devito, Pat Elza, Rich Grabowski, John Kiriklukiz, John McDonald, Luca Serra, and John Serrano, along with Seniors; Jim Enstrom and Nick J. Makropoulos. The induction ceremony was held in the school chapel, followed by a reception organized through the French Club.

COMPUTERS

AIDING EDUCATION

Going over homework with students is Ms. Gurdak, one of the computer class teachers.

During an Open House, the computer is displayed to show people its many uses.

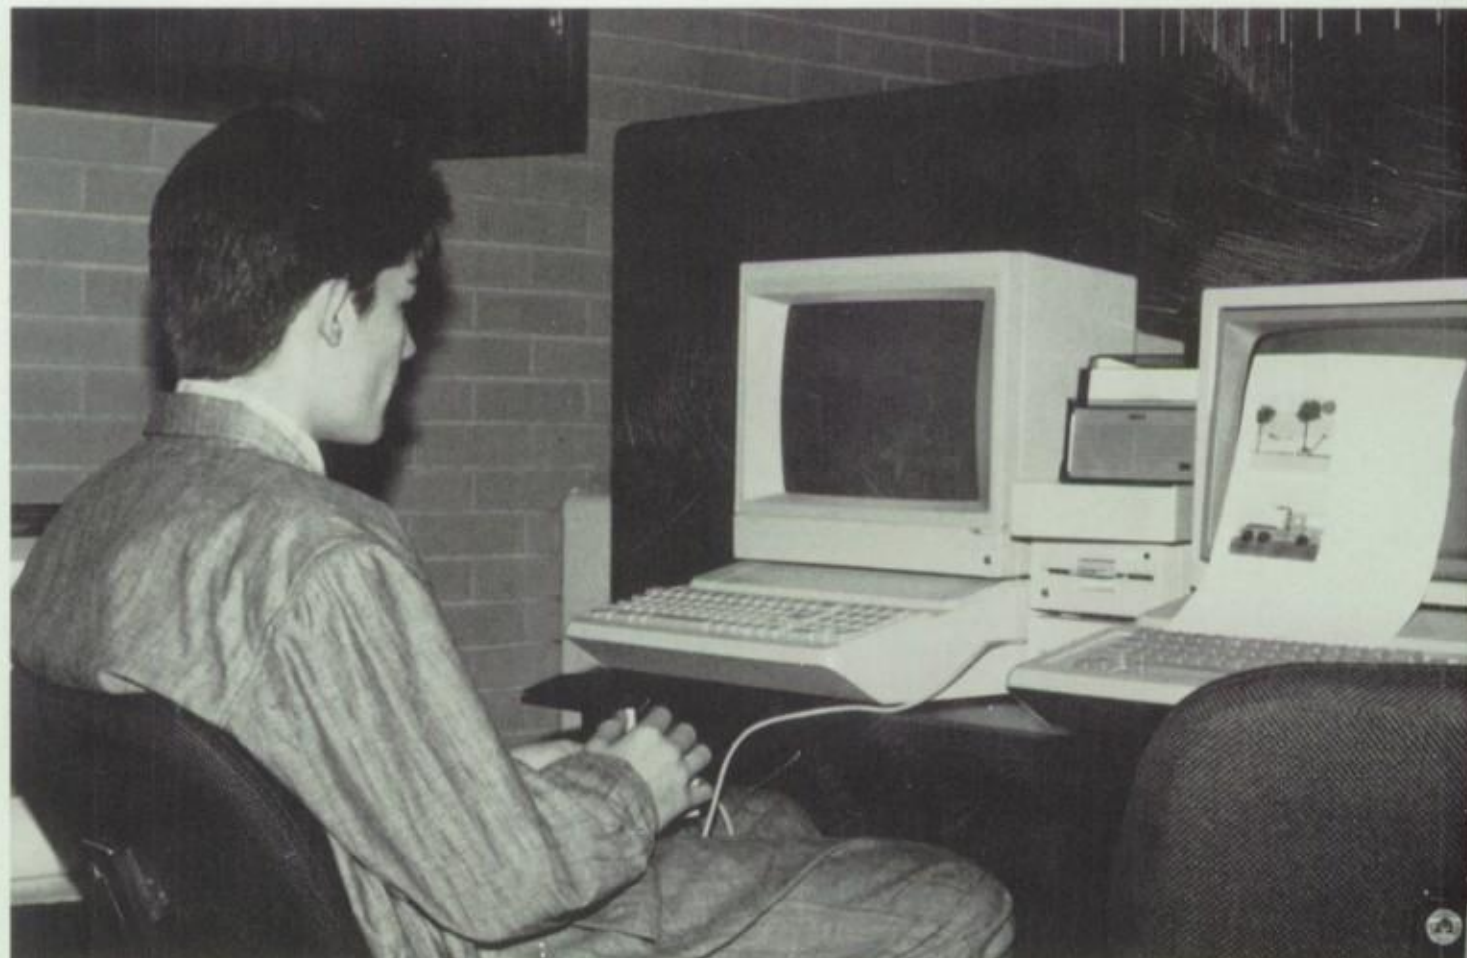

Who would have ever imagined that when the big bulky computer first came out it would soon be able to be used by almost everybody. No longer will scientists and big industries be the sole users of computers. The computers have been simplified to a point where all people can use them and someday it may even be required that all people possess the knowledge to operate one.

When a kid in high school thinks of computers he thinks of awesome computer games with sensational graphics. However, more and more, students are realizing that computers can be used as an educational tool. Mathematics problems and term papers are the most common areas covered by computers but there are also programs available for business, art, etc. Consequently, there are a number of classes designed to teach students how to use a computer and eventually how to write their own programs. These classes and facilities are all geared towards getting students prepared for an ever growing computer age.

The need for knowledge of computers grows constantly in today's society. Most anything can be run by a computer and eventually everything will be. With that in mind, isn't it good to know there are courses offered here at St. Pat's that can prepare us for a rapidly changing future?

SADD Campaign Underway

"If we can dream it, it can be done"

Developed out of a 1981 mandatory course on the topic of driving drunk, Students Against Drunk Driving has become a nationally recognized organization. Robert Anastas, the founder and executive director of SADD, designed a 15 day course for the sophomore students at Wayland High School, in Wayland, Ma. His objective was to increase the knowledge of alcohol and drug abuse, especially making point of the dangers of driving drunk. A chapter was established here at St. Patrick this year.

According to Ms. Gayle Fitzgerald, who helped organize the chapter, "SADD is a national organization for students to take responsibility for their behavior when they are drinking or when others are drinking." Indeed, drunk driving is a serious problem. A driving under the influence of alcohol (DUI) conviction means at least a year's license suspension in the state of Illinois, not to mention the fines and other problems that may arise. What's worse is the lives that could be lost to a drunken driver. Says Steve Boudreau, who along with another junior, Ralph DeStefano, initiated SADD at St. Pat's, "We have seen so many tragedies happen. If we can change one person's life, we feel we have accomplished something."

The SADD campaign involves a contract for life, in which a teen who has been drinking or is with someone who has been drinking will call their parents instead of driving or being with a drunk driver.

The parent agrees to pick up the child anywhere at any time, and not to say or ask anything at any time. The contract is reversible in that the parent will do the same if the situation arises. According to Boudreau, the time is now for such an organization. "We want to make people aware of what is going on. We want to make people aware that it can happen to them." Added Fitzgerald, "Just seeing the number of teenagers killed is enough."

The nation, too, supports SADD. It has received endorsement from the President's Commission on Drunk Driving and the United State Senate Committee on Alcoholism and Drug Abuse, among others. There are thousands of SADD organizations around the country, including over four million teenagers that are involved to "Stop the Madness."

Ideally, Boudreau would "... like to see it (SADD) as a St. Patrick chapter and seeing it as a place people can come to. Just to make it a known organization." He concluded, "Even if we just get five or six people (to sign contracts) that's fine. (We want) People that are interested and that will take it to heart." Drunk driving is the #1 killer of teenagers today. There is no better time for SADD than now. Together, let's "Stop the Madness!"

CATCH THE SPIRIT

Just imagine if the only reason to come to St. Pats was just to be lectured, assigned homework, and then tested on Friday. What if dances, especially Prom, disappeared from the school vocabulary? What, no Homecoming? God forgive, but it would be a living hell.

Fortunately, every student is given an opportunity to get more out of St. Pats than learning. Crowds come out to football games and dances just to socialize or "get lucky". Pep rallies allowed time to let loose and howl until your throat went sore. Even a volleyball game against the Notre Dame girls and a pathetic challenge by the girls of Mother Guerin to a Battle of the Sexes enabled the men of St. Pats to put down our cocky counterparts via the gym. Even the masses and retreats brought us closer with the school and ourselves

All these activities had one purpose in common-to build enthusiasm, pride, and spirit in St. Pats to make it more than a building. So to really get your tuition's worth, you had to "catch the spirit".

Huge crowds came out to cheer on the Shamrocks at all home games.

STUDENT LIFE

FIRST DAY FUN FORMS

POSITIVE ATTITUDES.

In an attempt to start the new year with a little school spirit, the class of 91' embarked on Spirit Day. This first day of school for the freshmen was not really school in the sense of books and classes, but rather a day to learn their way around St. Pats.

Everyone began the day in their homerooms where they received information concerning the actual first day of school. Each new recruit also got a "Class of 91" baseball cap. After taking care of the formalities, they busied themselves with making teams for the volleyball and tug-of-war games coming up.

After the competitions, the freshmen attacked the picnic area in the courtyard. Barbecue hot dogs and hamburgers, chips, and pop were greedily devoured by the youngsters.

Afterwards, an assembly was held in the gym where some of the braver ones had the chance to win "Mean Green" shirts by singing the school song, solo.

At the end of the day, the newest Shamrocks were allowed to use the pool and the gym as they liked.

Las Vegas?

Parent's club makes it close enough!

Though many of us are still too young to participate in these two events, we should still be grateful they exist. On October 16th-17th, the school hosted the invaluable Fall Festival. But not to be neglected, April 22nd-23rd had the distinction of holding the Spring Festival.

A year ago, these fund raisers faced a dubious future when the state of Illinois had declared such "Las Vegas nights" illegal. But after a huge public outcry, Gov. Thompson signed the bill to allow non-profit organizations the right to hold such fund raisers.

The average student may ask, "Who cares?" Well, unless that student wins the lottery, he had better care. Without the Fall/Spring Festivals, tuition would sky-rocket. Considering every parent works for a living, a Christian education may just be a luxury — one that many families may not be able to afford as the cost of living rises ever more dangerously. The prestige and quality of St. Pats is unrivaled by any public school (and a lot safer too!).

So remember, while our parents and other adults have fun gambling, they indirectly — or maybe they tell you they directly when they lose — help us stay in school. If you couldn't come here, think of all the fun you'd miss!

Thank God half these people don't carry guns, otherwise we might have the modern day version of that infamous town of Dodge City!

AAAhhhh! Another contributor via the roulette wheel!

HOMECOMING RALLIES STUDENT BODY SPIRIT

With the football team knocking down opponent after opponent, fans were more than ready for Homecoming Week. Though the week lacked some activities usually run during Homecoming Week, students more than made up for the losses with their enthusiasm.

The seniors ruled Wednesday afternoon as their volleyball team creamed the faculty team. Senior Sean Crilly kept track of the seniors' victory and inspired the crowd. Unfortunately, the juniors blew their games in degrading losses to their opponent faculty team.

Thursday remained idle, but Friday brought the pep rally and the big game against Marist. In an attempt to show-off, the Redskin "coach" visited the pep rally with some of his "biggest, meanest" linemen. It proved embarrassing as the cheerleaders greeted the "coach" with a pie in the face. After the rally, the school held its first ever balloon race.

Later that evening, a huge student body and alumni crowd cheered the Shamrocks on to a 7-0 victory against the rival Redskins.

The Homecoming Dance capped-off the week. Changed to a casual occasion, the dance attracted many of the fans from the day before.

St. Pats Responds to the Challenge of the Sexes

The night of Nov. 21, 1987 brought the first annual Challenge of the Sexes from the girls of Mother Guerin against the men of St. Pats. Nearly one hundred girls and sixty men participated in several events ranging from the tug-of-war to a limbo contest. Despite the negative feedback prior to the challenge, the evening ended in enthusiasm and St. Pats as the victor. The crowd got into the fun as much as the "gladiators" on the floor.

The activities began with the slow-paced basketball free throws, but soon ventured into the exciting tug-of-war. The girls pulled away a victory, leaving the guys without much confidence in their manhood. But then the men soon recovered and took the lead for the rest of the night. The other events included a water balloon contest, leap frog, trivial pursuit, relay races, the teacup stacking contest, and a limbo contest. All team members crowded around the limbo stick to cheer their respected members on. The referees couldn't control the mob scene, proving the events as a success.

As the adventurous night came to a close, St. Pats walked away the trophy bearer. But both sides actually won a moral battle since the school spirits created by the evening reflected positively on the organized efforts of the students' activities board. Maybe this is a sign of future things to come?

Drama Club Has Fun on the Beach

In his first attempt at directing at St. Pats, Kirby Volz took on the challenge of Brighton Beach Memoirs, a Neil Simon production. After eight weeks of rehearsals, the stage was set (literally) for a four night engagement in the library. Since backstage ran along the left window wall, the audience flanked the stage on either side. "It was the first time I directed that way," said the newest director. "It was a challenge to give each side equal attention."

The story begins in the fall of 1937, on the eve of World War II, in the Jacob Jerome house. It's a modest Jewish home on Brighton Beach, Brooklyn, New York. Eugene Jerome (Brian Velez) describes the family crisis that hits his family in that fall of '37 and how they manage to come through.

Paul Connelly plays Stanley Jerome, the oldest son. Nora Morton, the 16 year old cousin, is played by Eileen Dziedzic. Jennifer Kilian takes on the role of Blanche Morton, the aunt. Michelle Kozak plays Nora's little sister Laurie Morton. Ty Mendro and Andy Salvato shared the role of Jack Jerome, the father. Michelle Steffan played Kate Jerome, the mother.

The cast seemed to enjoy putting on the performance and the audience had a good response. "It was the first play I was in and worth the experience," said Brian Velez. Kirby Volz responded, "The cast and audience enjoyed it and I enjoyed directing it."

SPIRIT WEEK

The much anticipated Spirit Week campaign launched-off on Monday, March 17, with the incumbent "Green & Gold" day. Anything from "Mean Green" T-shirts to green pants came back into style for a day (and hopefully for only this short time). It also kicked a series of homeroom tug-of-war and arm wrestling competition into high gear.

Tuesday brought a touch of summer as everyone had a chance to show-off their '88 beachwear. Dego-T's, Spuds MacKenzie shirts, Bermudas, floppy hats, and sunglasses typified the apparel.

But Wednesday put forth a challenge to those of Olympic stature. The Olympic games between the students and their oppressors commenced after the ceremonial 2:30 dinger. It was close in all the events — baby bottle drinking, toilet paper wrapping, free throw shooting, tug-of-war, relay racing, musical chairs, and finally the water balloon toss; but age caught up with the faculty. They CHOKED in simple terms. The laurels of victory belong to the students.

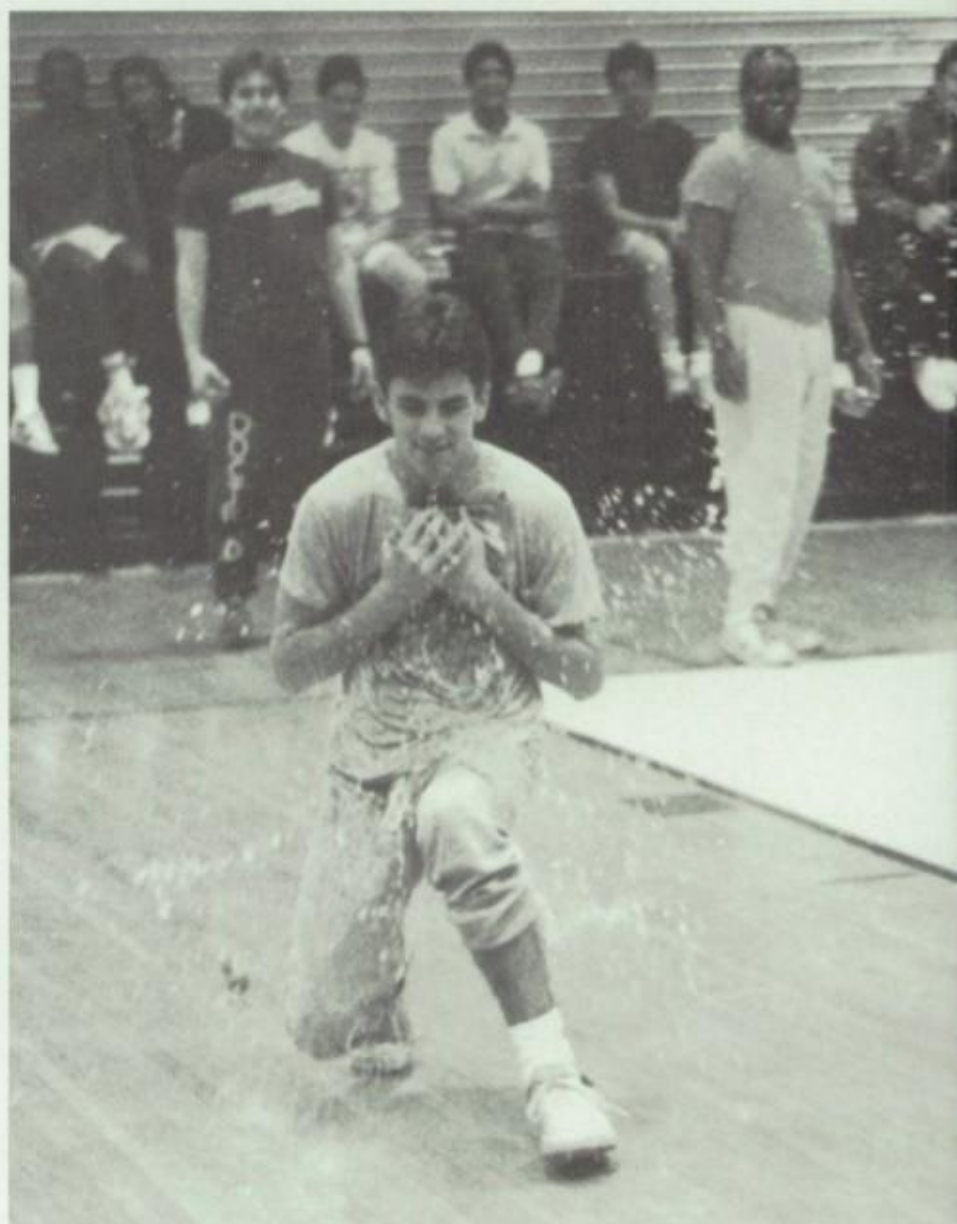

Tacky ties took Thursday. The weirdest, most revolting, scariest, disgusting, and plain tacky ties — probably resurrected from deep in some people's drawers or borrowed from some faculty member — came out in numbers. It's no wonder why some of those ties are destroyed. The "best of the worst" were sent to be judged by a tortured panel of judges to earn a free lunch (talk about something equally as revolting).

All the homeroom competitions came down to the finals before the whole school in the gym. The underdogs surprised everyone in everything (the winners are on page 167). The day ended with a little "thank you" for the cheerleading squad.

But all things in this world must end sometime. The week officially ended on Saturday with the final dance of the year in the gym.

Not an uncommon site, Paul Scaglione gets doused by an exploding balloon in the balloon toss.

Men of Iron fight it out in the arm wrestling finals. Sam Troumpoucis is the winner in this match.

Sister Mary almost sinks this shot in the free throw competition (in which Pat Crawford missed all three of his shots).

Senior homeroom 103 literally pulls away the victory in this upset win in the tug-of-war finals.

Spirit of God

Present in Gym during Masses

It's a shame to attend a Catholic high school without really living out your Christian obligations. The many masses throughout the year offer an opportunity for the teen-age Christian to get closer in touch with God during the week. Through the masses, we're to realize that God is a very real part of our lives that deserves due attention.

The trouble involves the students' attitudes. For the most part, the masses play the role of nap time or screw-off time. Not to neglect the students who try to actively participate, but many are not taking the masses seriously.

To try to get the students' attention, many are picked as servers, readers, and Eucharistic ministers. The problem still arises that the others still use the time for something other than what it symbolizes — a chance to strengthen and become more aware of our Catholic convictions.

Time to Get Away

Offers Chance For Growth and Discovery

Every year, students receive an opportunity to enhance their spiritual growth and discover something about themselves and others through the retreat program.

For the underclassmen, their soul searching takes place in the gym during an all day session. Through small groups of eight led by an upper classmen, they reacted to questions and a film aimed at the moral side of their lives. A surprising change this year was the absence of Fr. Terry Deffenbough. Instead, these two retreats were run by the campus ministry director himself, Bro. Leo.

The juniors experienced a more intimate retreat down at LaSalle Manor in Plano, Illinois. In small groups of about forty, students received a couple days away from it all to meditate, talk in small, comfortable groups, and just plain relax.

The senior retreat was purely voluntary. The special aspect is that the retreat is co-ed in which seniors learned more about relationships, marriage, and what the future holds for them in the same atmosphere as the juniors.

Through all the films, masses, small group discussions, and meditations Bro. Leo hopes that everyone sensed a deeper growth and awareness of themselves.

Team work may be one of the lessons juniors may learn while on the retreat.

Gospel of Matthew As Seen Never Before

in GODSPELL

The Shamrock Players presented GODSPELL for its spring musical. GODSPELL, adapted from the the Gospel of Matthew, was a huge success. Held in the gym during the weekend of April 30 to May 1, it was the first musical since GREASE in the spring of 1986.

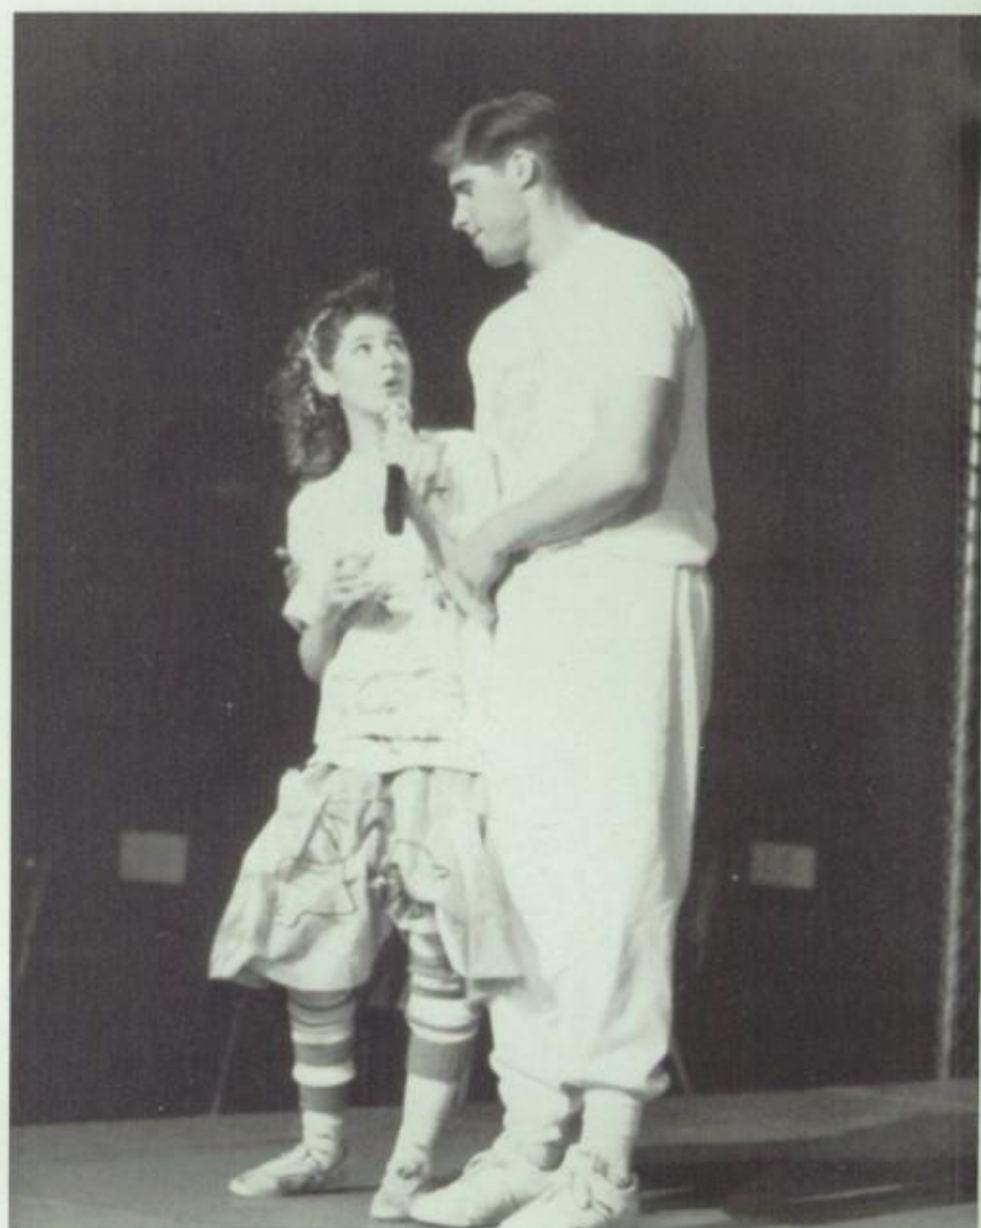

The story revolves around the life of Christ, played by Pete Fleming, from his baptism to his death on the cross. But the reproduction is in the form of song and dance, using Jesus' parables as the guideline. Kevin Fitzpatrick co-starred as John the Baptist/Judas Iscariot.

To keep things simple, the stage consisted only of a platform flanked by a streamer-decorated chain-link fence and the scaffold. The whole cast wore a highly outrageous, creative, artistic, and home-made wardrobe to add a little pizzazz to the production.

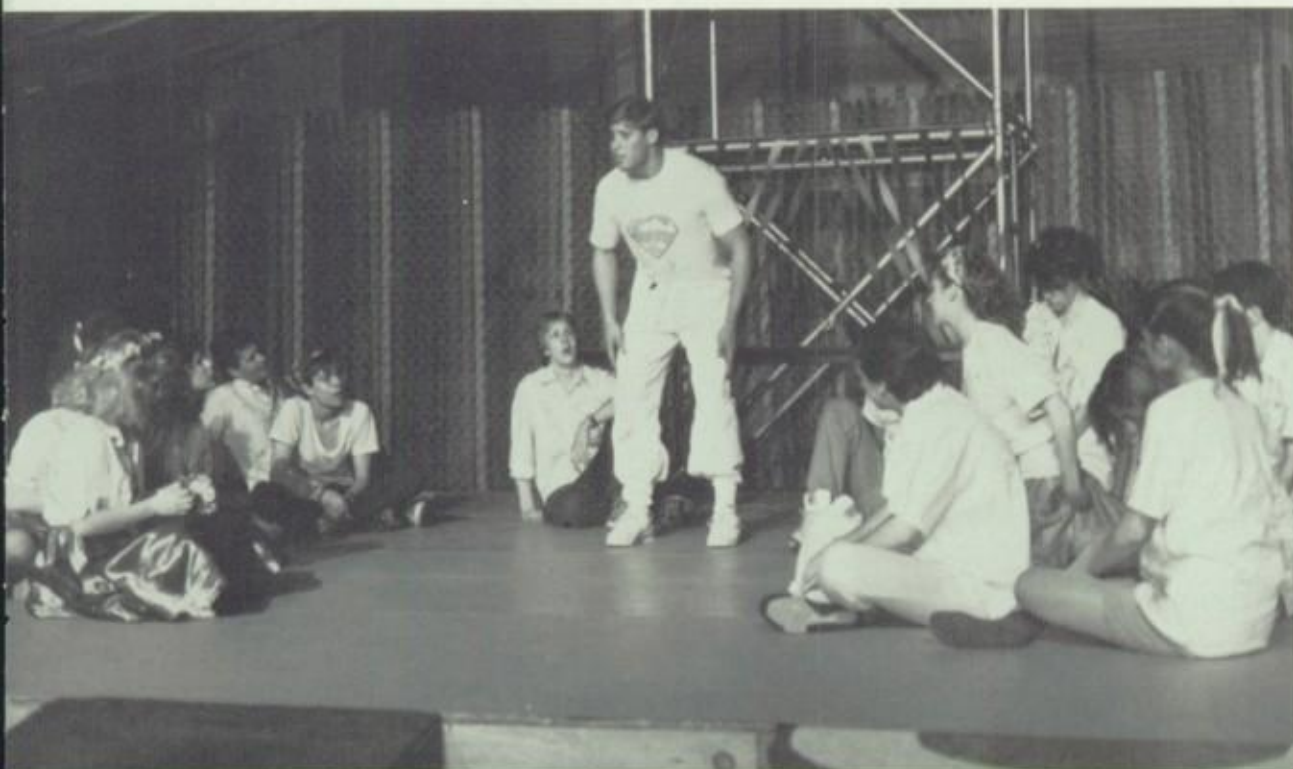

Director Kirby Volz, with help from choreographer Melinda Robertsour and music director Bonnie Brounson, deserves credit in putting together a cast with the talent and guts to put on a musical. Other faces around St. Pats include: Steve Freidreis, Ryan Galiotto, Adam Edwards, Paul Connelly, Chris Laarveld, and Mark Steinback. You have to look a little farther for the actresses: Simone Collins, Debbie Gillespie, Amy Conlon, Martha Conlon, Sheila Joyce, Julie Gillespie, Michelle Steffen, Kim Connelly, and Barb Foley.

Two events near the end of the year really try to build spirit within the soon to be seniors — the Ring Mass and Junior Prom. Close to a month's span between the two, each signals one step nearer to the end of high school's long journey. Each is a special occasion deserving one's best suit or a tuxedo.

The '89 class rings received a blessing after which the recipients were reminded of the school insignia and its importance. When the time finally arrived to receive the tokens, the juniors were itching. Upon reaching their seats, they immediately began examining their rings for blemishes. After passing the test, the ring then is passed to family and friends. Refreshments were served afterwards in the cafeteria where schoolmates could show-off their rings to each other.

At a not so hush-hush event in May, juniors could now show-off their dates at the Junior Prom. Though the danger of cancellation existed, the junior department was able to pull through. Once again Brigante's hosted the annual event with music provided by a DJ. Afterwards was left to the imagination.

Those who missed out on either event really left an unwritten chapter in their book of life. With senior year around the corner my advice is don't blow it again!

Senior Prom

As hard as it is for most seniors to cough up a dollar for fries at lunch, it's no wonder why they all seemed to have the time of their lives in the span of a few hours at the Ramada. Paying at least a minimum of $75 in the first place, it was not a night to have a rotten time — like the days when the fries are cold. Then consider, all you soon to be seniors, the tuxedo, the corsage, the limo, the coming of an end of four years. It's no wonder at all.

The typical senior went through the anxiety attack after picking up the corsage — what if she hates it? Then all the buttons didn't want to go through those miniature slits, or the pants were too tight after leaving the store, etc . . . On the way to pick up the date, those red lights seemed longer all the time. But finally you arrive and ring the doorbell.

After the pictures, it's off to the Ramada and the spacious ballroom on the main floor. Finding a pair of open seats with your friends, you begin to chat the time away or say hello to other chums until dinner began.

The Left and a couple of DJ's supplied the music for the scariest exhibition of dancing ever on one dance floor. Even some of the chaperones joined the fun. Perhaps what was the most memorable was the Garter dance. You had your inexperienced (the wimps who took it off quickly), the romantics (the deliberately slow ones), and the untamed (leave it to the imagination).

The music lasted until 12:30, but many couples left early to begin post-prom activities: traditional hotel room parties, carriage rides, more dinner, or a cabin or two.

The evening ended much like those "choose your own adventure" books — if you pick the right combinations, the reward was unforgettable; if not, there is a whole series of books yet to try!

Senior Prom couldn't have been such a big success without the senior class presidents. This is their moment in the spotlight.

The fun on the floor rocked into the next day since couples had so much energy from dinner.

It was like a bad case of gas — it built up for four long years, nearly blew you inside-out; but when you finally got rid of it, you felt great. Some kept it in a little longer; but for those who made it, it was another page in the scrapbook.

After sweating-out the weekend following finals, the survivors returned a final time to the gym for practice. During the run-through, special awards, tickets, and caps and gowns were distributed. Eager to feast on barbecue hot dogs and hamburgers afterwards, the seniors were sure not to screw around. Right.

May 27th rolled around with everyone in formal attire in front of Holy Name Cathedral. After final adjustments with the caps (which took a heck of a lot to keep on), the procession began at 7:30.

Shortly following the opening prayer came the first reading by Ken Ottaviano, the responsorial psalm led by Jon Van Benthem, and the second reading according to Joe Donati. The Most Rev. William E. McManue, D.D. delivered the Gospel and a most inspirational homily in which he identified the power in this year's class to face the world. After the Eucharist, class Valedictorian David Schultz read his Oration. Br. Konrad and Mr. J. Schmidt then gave their congratulatory remarks followed by the alumni induction by Mr. Lowell I. Stahl of the class of 1952.

Finally the time came to let the gas loose. Though much of the applause came after the last graduate received his diploma, a few outbursts in-between were well-deserved. In a short while, the world would receive some 230 recently released adults. The world is in trouble.

The Shannon Rovers ceremoniously led the Class of 1988 through the doors of the Cathedral and into their first challenge — to find their parents and friends on State Street. After final good-byes, the assembled scattered. God only knows what the future holds.

Blood, sweat, and tears — The basic ingredients contained in every athletes lifestyle. At St. Pat's the athletes go through a rough day at school and at the close of each school day, prepare to push themselves beyond their physical limits. Long practices and late dinners become everyday occurrences. Cuts, bruises, and other physical ailments wear down and begin to take a toll on the athletes. Goals are set but not always reached and at times it seems that all the hard work has been wasted. Nonetheless students wish to subject themselves to such torture in hopes of achieving glory or personal satisfaction. Sports play a vital role in a student's life. Comradery, self-esteem, and discipline are learned and those traits can be carried all throughout one's life. The athletic program has raised many fine teams and has provided a necessary part in the aura of school life.

PLAYOFF VICTORY HIGHLIGHTS SEASON FOR VARSITY FOOTBALL

The 1987 Varsity football team provided numerous thrills for its fans, including a first year state playoff victory. Before the season started, Coach John Urban set a few big goals for his young team and they fought hard to accomplish nearly every one. Some of these goals were: winning the opener against Weber, taking the conference championship, and getting into the state playoffs.

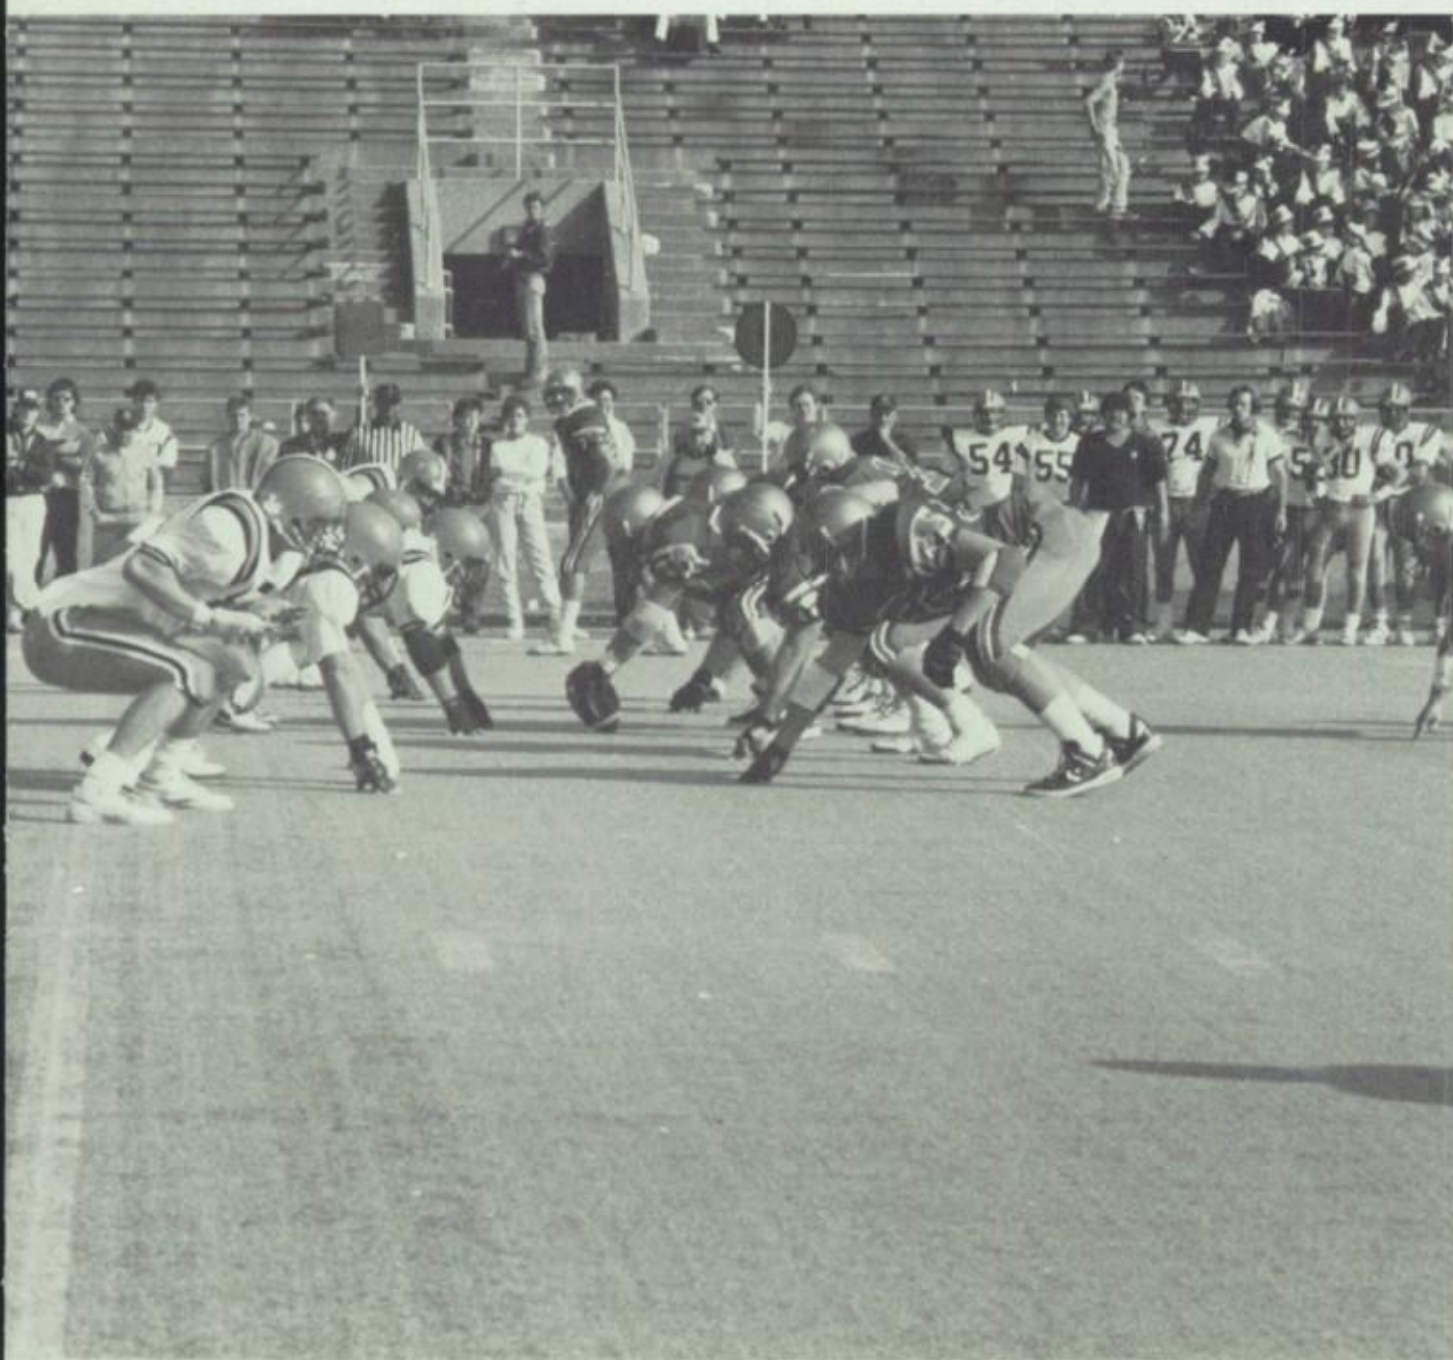

According to Coach Urban, the backbone of the team was the defense, one of the strongest in school history. Anchored by linebacker Bill Freeney, the defense consistently shutdown their opponents. The strong play of the defense helped compensate for the early-season inconsistency of the offense. Sputtering in its first few games, the young offense finally began playing consistently and at the end functioned as a potent offense.

Many of the season's highlights included Coach Urban's best season at St. Pat's and victories over eventual 5a Champion Joliet Catholic and defending 6a Champ Marist. For all of their hard work eight deserving players were named to the All-Conference team.

The glorious season came to an abrupt end at the hands of an excellent Mt. Carmel team, but that team did not take away from the great Shamrock season. Looking back, Coach Urban commented, "Overall I was very pleased. We worked hard all year and lost to a very tough football team." With regards to next year, many juniors will return to provide St. Pats with another conference contender.

OERSHADOWED BY VARSITY S.FOOTBALL

Not to be outdone by the great varsity season, the 1987 Soph. Football team provided some highlights of their own. Coach Frank Bauer hoped to see his players develop into a full working unit, and his wish came true. Through constant drills and practice, Coach Bauer was able to mold his players into a fine football team. With a few breaks, the sophomores could have won the conference title. As things went, they finished with a 7-2 record.

The sophomores combined a high-powered offense with a tough defense. Coach Bauer remarked, "Our offense and defense played consistent, excellent football all season long." Although some problems did occur on special teams, Coach Bauer felt that the players performed well when needed. It was this type of consistent play from the team that Coach Bauer had hoped for.

The 1987 Freshman Football team performed well for new coach Mike DiMatteo as well. With a 7-2 record, both the freshmen and the sophomores will comprise an excellent varsity contender in the near future. As Coach Bauer stated, "This has been one of the finest teams I have been associated with in 30 years of coaching." Good Luck in the future!

NEW COACH AND NEW SYSTEM BRING DEMANDING SEASON

When the season began, the St. Patrick Varsity soccer players had to adjust to a whole different style of play. With the departure of Mr. Robert Ward, Mr. Hector Crisanto graciously took the head coaching job for the team. "I thought it was going to take a lot of hard work and that we were having a lot of problems in recruiting," Mr. Crisanto commented at the onset of the season. Obviously, the team had to improve daily if they were to compete with suburban powerhouses like Carmel and St. Viator. With the leadership of captains Jerry Cichon and Joe Donati the team performed admirably in their games. The final minutes of regulation time decided the outcome of many games.

A vital factor which prevented the team from winning more games was the injuries to many of the starting players. In the middle of the season, the team showed signs of tremendous improvement even though key players suffered untimely injuries. The team, however, held their heads up and played to their maximum capabilities.

The future of the program depends heavily on the school's cooperation. Recruitment of young talents should be the main goal, and a home field must be firmly established in order for the team to gain a psychological edge over their opponents. Commenting on the team's future Coach Crisanto added, "I think that within one or two years we are going to be one of the top teams, but it's going to take a lot of hard work."

"Never give up", stood as the motto this year for the new Frosh/Soph soccer coach Mr. Mark Criscuolo. Skilled or unskilled, Coach Criscuolo expected his players to perform to the best of their ability and potential.

Although their record of five wins, fifteen losses, and one tie failed to meet Coach Criscuolo's goal of a winning season, the team undoubtedly showed tremendous signs of improvement over the previous year. The players practiced the skills of dribbling, passing quickly, and kicking the ball without hesitation. These techniques helped in important victories against Notre Dame and DeLasalle.

Commenting on the defense, Coach Criscuolo said, "The team never really had a goal tender, and too many mental errors were made." Despite the lack of a strong defense, a few individuals performed consistently all year. Charlie Warzynski received best defensive player honors. Other awards such as best offense went to freshman Chris Kamys and sophomore Peter Haring and the sportsmanship award went to Gene Zachar.

Overall, the team, under their new coach, deserve much credit for their hard work and effort. With more hard work and determination, this year's Frosh/Soph players may soon evolve into an excellent soccer team.

GLORY OR PAIN

ATHLETICS

Athletics — for some a hobby, for others a way of life. Athletics produce dreams, hopes, sweet rewards and on the other hand, pain, stress, and disappointment. What makes one willing to reach beyond his physical and mental limits, to risk personal injury or permanent damage, and finally to sacrifice most of their time to a sport?

Regardless of the numerous reasons, all high school athletes deserve credit for their endeavors and achievements. People tend not to notice the three-hour practices; the cuts and bruises; the ice bages; the pulled muscles, ripped cartilage, and dislocated joints; or the hospital visits and possible surgeries. All of us tend to recognize people being honored for their achievements, but what about those athletes who worked as much as others or who didn't have the natural talent and were forced to put everything into improving? Hats-off to all those who gave 100% effort despite not producing the best results and congratulations to those who were recognized for their achievements. All-in-all St. Patrick has an outstanding athletic tradition. Congratulations!!

LACK OF RUNNERS DIDN'T HINDER SPIRIT OF CROSS-COUNTRY

The 1987-88 Cross-Country season had many good points as well as bad points. The departure of most of last year's team hindered the team's performance. Despite the lack of experience and participants, the teams competed well in a tough conference.

Coach Tom Hayes summed up the team's performance in one word — excellent. The team did a fine job considering that most of the runners were new to the sport. Varsity runners Paul Rocks and Tom Temelis proved to be the Varsity's most consistent performers. Tom Ryan, Derek Eckman, and Sean Delahanty contributed to the Frosh/Soph's success. All in all, 100% effort was turned in by all members of the team.

Coach Hayes taught the team the basic principles of hard work and dedication, as well as the rewards they bring. This especially holds true during the off season. During the practice sessions, the ideals of long distance running and the shortening of times were strongly emphasized.

The major highlight of the season was the outstanding performance at the West Leyden Quad. In this event the team's hard work and determination won out in the end with the team taking second place.

As for next year's team a strong summer program and a bolstering of the participation will become key factors for Coach Hayes and his runners. With both of these improvements added next year, the Cross-Country team will prove to be stronger competition.

WITH NEW COACH COMES LEARNING: GOLF

During this past season, Coach Max Kurland and his golfers learned valuable concepts. The team's opponents, this past year, proved difficult to beat due to the lack of experience on the team's and the coach's part. Tony Benedetto, Kevin Reynolds, Pat Enright, and Tony Strzalka shot consistent scores against the toughest opponents.

Due to a lack of preparation time, proper golfing skills could not be learned. However, the golfers played tough and kept improving with each match. "Give your best effort towards improving — not winning or losing," served as Coach Kurland's team concept. The desire to improve and shoot consistently served as the team's greatest assets.

Mr. Kurland hopes for more interested players to try out for the team next season. Practice time over the summer in order to teach the necessary skills for good golf rank among Coach Kurland's top priorities for next season.

WAVE to VICTORY !

LACK OF SIZE AND EXPERIENCE HURT :

Pressured by a pesky opponent, Gene Heidkamp looks for an open man.

V. BASKETBALL

No one expected the Shamrock Varsity Basketball team to do very well considering they lost five of last year's starters and they didn't have the size or strength of previous St. Pat's teams. Nonetheless, they set out to prove to the school and to themselves that they could uphold the honor of the St. Patrick basketball program.

Things started out well for the Shamrocks as they shocked the skeptics and swept their Thanksgiving Tournament. Senior point guard Gene Heidkamp achieved MVP honors with his three-point bombs and defensive prowess throughout the tournament. This unfortunately proved to be the high point of the season.

As the season rolled on, junior Terry Cameron and senior Derrik Yarborough put a lot of points on the board, but defensively the team lacked consistency. Senior center Brian Berg and the rest of the squad just didn't have the size to match up with most teams. Most of St. Pat's victories came from intelligent, overachieving play coupled with hard work and intensity. "Our passing and shooting kept us in a lot of games — these were our greatest strengths," commented Pat King. King provided leadership throughout the season and recieved All-Conference honors. Gene Heidkamp and Derrik Yarborough gained Special Mention honors.

Coach Max Kurland summed up the season by saying, "We learned one of life's hardest lessons, hard work and effort don't always produce immediate results. This was a season of unfulfilled desires."

The St. Patrick Sophomore basketball team played the 1987-88 season with energy, enthusiasm, and loyalty.

Coach Jarka taught his team several important things. One of them being to reach their potential everyday in practices and games. Other aspects stressed by Coach Jarka included individual skills such as: ball handling, shooting, rebounding, and defense, which compose basic team skills. Running the team play effectively was one of Coach Jarka's goals. "It takes every person to understand our team concepts and to work on them everyday."

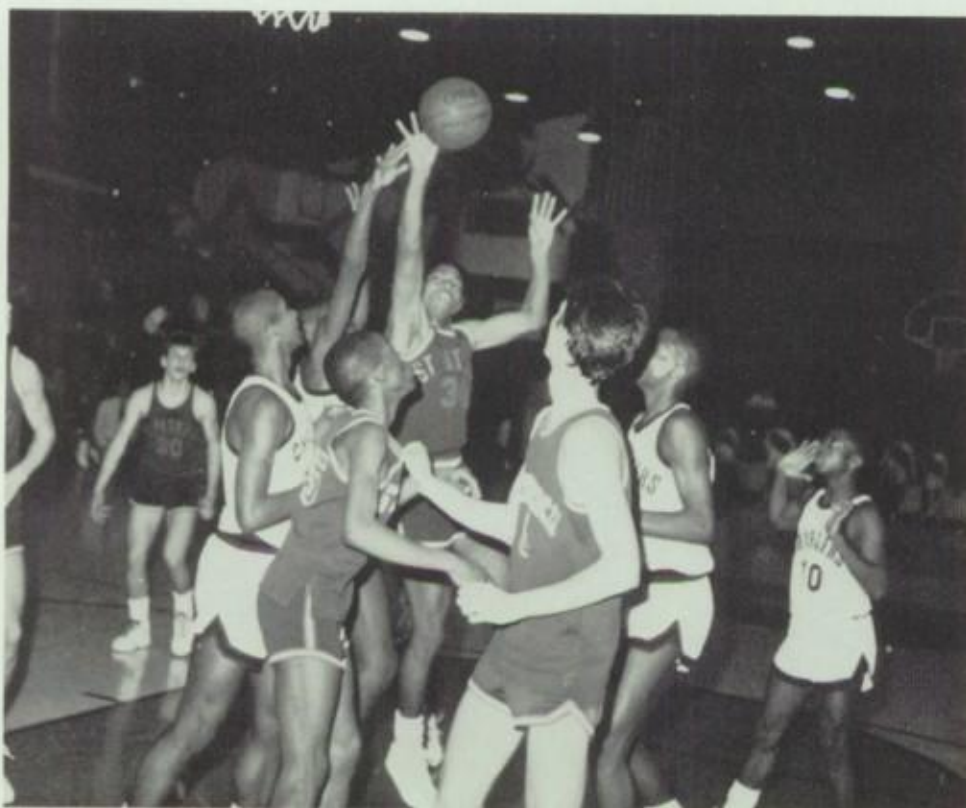

The highlight of the season came with a win over Benet, at Benet, in front of a standing-room-only crowd. The team worked ardently for a moment like the one at Benet for over two years. "We believed, we achieved, we overcame, and most important of all, we did it as a team," Coach Jarka noted proudly.

All the members of the sophomore team gave it their all at games and practices, but two players performed above standards and received MVP honors. Those two players were Steve Howski and Chris Polanski.

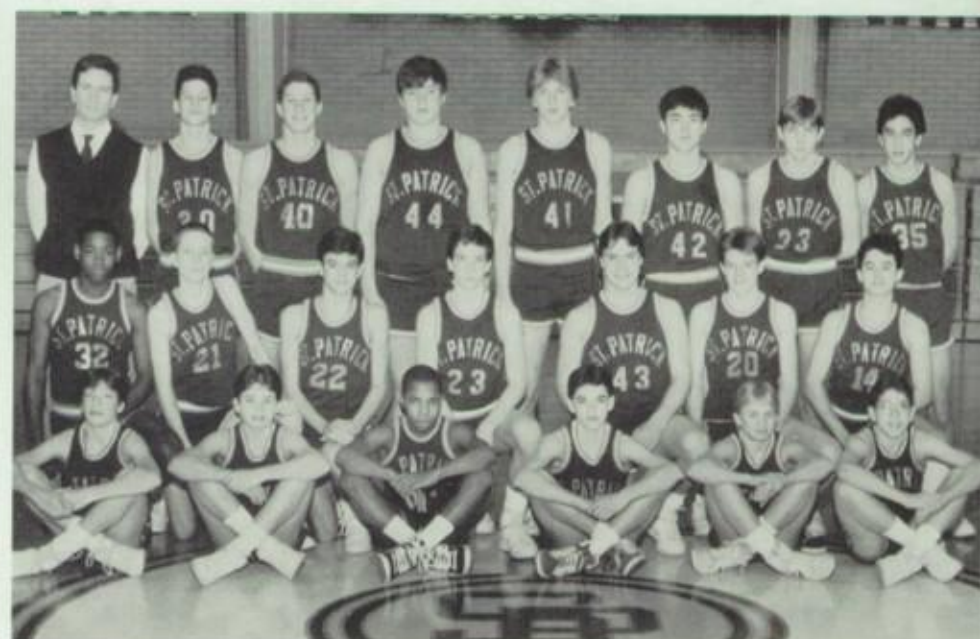

The 1987-88 season was a maturing season for the members of the freshman team. Two members received MVP honors for their efforts. They were Brian Kopf and Mike King.

REVEALING A COMPETITIVE FUTURE: V. WRESTLING

After a season of hard work, the St. Patrick varsity wrestlers finished at a very respectable 10-8 record, and finished a strong second in conference behind Marist with a 6-1 record. The wrestlers also placed well in the tournament meets, finishing third at Buffalo Grove and fourth at Holy Cross. Credit should be given to first year varsity coach, Mr. Catalano, and his staff for a very strong season.

In the beginning of the year, the team's goals were to wrestle competitively and to have wrestlers qualify for sectionals and state competition. Despite strong individual performances, however, nobody went down-state. Despite this disappointment Pat Payne noted, "A positive point was that many of the younger guys wrestled giving them some experience." Among the promising young wrestlers were junior Brendan Payne (who ended a tremendous season with a 30-9 and won his weight class in conference), Joe Sartin, and sophomore Pat Duggan (who also won conference). These young wrestlers should provide the leadership for next year's team.

A major highlight of the season were the accomplishments of senior Pat Payne. He finished the year at 34-7 and finished his career at St. Pats in fifth place in career victories with ninety. Seniors who also excelled were Jon O'Malley, Dan Kane, Lance Weidner, and Mike Higgin.

The future for next year once again appears very promising. Seven starters from this year will return for next year. "The wrestlers should keep working out during the summer and get more experience," Pat Payne said if the team wants to succeed next year. With more depth and with fine coaching from Mr. Catalano and his staff, the wrestlers should excell next year.

YOUNG TALENT BRINGS GREAT SEASON

F — S WRESTLING

Once again, St. Pat's varsity wrestling future looks bright. Both Freshmen and Sophomores took second in conference, despite the baptism by fire of some members who filled varsity spots. This is due to the fact that the importance of team unity was stressed; as Coach Zazzaro stated, "Each team member is of great importance to the team, those who started and those who didn't should receive equal praise." In fact too many good wrestlers at the same weight proved to be the team's only weakness.

The Freshmen battled to a 14-2 record, including a season highlight of being the first Frosh team in eight years to beat Oak Park. Other feats were accomplished at the Palatine Tourney(1st) and the Gordon and Willowbrook Tourneys (2nd).

A tough Marist team prevented the Sophomores, 12-1, from going undefeated. An excellent season was highlighted by taking first at the Carmel Tourney.

Continuation of Coach Zazzaro's

philosophy: aggression, control, knowledge, and intensity combined with hard work over the summer should bear the fruits of victory in the future.

Chalk up another successful season for St. Pat's swimming. Hard work, experience, and senior leadership helped fuel a strong season. The team took a close third place finish in conference. It proved to be one of the most competitive years in the conference and the Shamrocks had close battles with all their conference opponents. Some of the early season highlights were a 1st place finish in a tough tri-meet at Niles West.

Shamrock swimming led by co-captains Joe Ozimek and Jeremy Walsh had one of its proudest moments in its history at the state sectionals meet. Strong performances by all swimmers led to an impressive 2nd place finish in the meet. Joe Ozimek won the 200m Individual Medley (first Shamrock ever) and went on to participate in the state finals. Seniors Tony Prokes, Dave Zahn, and Jeremy Walsh all had impressive drops in time at the sectional meet. The two relay teams broke school records. Freshmen Andy Sorenson and Tom Warta show promise for the future.

The Frosh/Soph team also performed well with a second place finish in conference. Under the direction of first year coach Mark Criscuolo the Frosh/Soph team should provide excellent fuel for an outstanding varsity team next year.

Coach Rudy Presslak had good feelings at the start of the season. He knew the hitting and defense were good but pitching was up in the air. To his joy all phases performed well bringing in a 21 — 16 record. The main aspects taught by Coach Presslak and Coach Tom Buscarini were the basic fundamentals and to play as a team. According to Coach Presslak, "We learned that personal stats are nice, but when the final score is printed it says St. Patrick."

The team's major highlight was their trip to Milwaukee. It was then on an actual road trip that the team gelled together. Several players received special honors for their individual efforts. Pat Crawford and Brian Berg received All-Conference honors with Don Goodman, Pat King, Tony Pignataro, John Leyden, and Chris Polanski bringing home Honorable Mention awards.

Coach Presslak was extremely proud of this group. On rating their performance, Coach Presslak replied, "EXCELLENT! Everyone contributed and everyone gave 100%. That's all we can ever ask." Next season will be spent in search of a conference title. Coach Presslak will send a team modelled after the fine 1987-88 team to the field.

GETTING THE JOB DONE

F/S BASEBALL

The pitcher whirls and throws to second . . . But he's back in time.

The baseball future continues to look bright with much talent brewing in the lower levels. The Freshmen (17-10) had a good year and the Sophomores went 10-21 mainly because two of their starting players are playing for Varsity. Pitching and clutch hitting seemed to be the biggest nemesis for the Sophomore team. Coach Dennis Miller remarked that the season was "a little disappointing" but he is happy with the way the team performed despite losing their two best players John Leyden and Chris Polanski and three more towards the end of the season to the Varsity team.

nents nearly two to one with a solid pitching staff, the freshman were able to fight their way into a second place finish in conference. These fine players will definitely shore-up the sophomore squad next season.

During the off-season, Coach Miller plans to emphasize fundamentals and team play along with working on the pitching staff. Players are encouraged to work on conditioning and individual skills when the team is not practicing.

With such fine freshman and sophomore teams that prepare young players for varsity play, it is no wonder we have had such a strong baseball tradition here at St. Pats. These fine players will do a great job when they eventually reach the varsity level. Good Luck!

Up and over — A clear jump for high jumping Fernando Cervantes

The perennial problem of minimal involvement once again plagued the 1987-88 varsity track team. A track team needs a full squad able to compete in all events in order to fare well in competition. First year coach Michael DiMatteo tried to spread out his small squad to encompass all of the events which led to team members having to perform in more than one event at a single meet. According to Coach DiMatteo, "They did do well despite the low numbers of people." Senior Brian Hyde led the team and went downstate in the triple jump. He also took first place in the conference for that event.

The Frosh/Soph team opened a bright spot for Coaches DiMatteo and newcomer Ken Rarey. The talented group comprising the Frosh/Soph squad took fourth place in a demanding conference. The seasonal highlight came at the Niles Invitational where the team members put forth their best individual performances and took the first place prize.

The future definitely looks bright for the track team. This year's Juniors led by Tom Temelis, Tom Conway, Dan Fiermuga, and Fernando Cervantes will return to try again next year. With the influx of some of the Frosh/Soph members the track team will prove tough competition for other conference teams. If these athletes can have a banner season and if the involvement in the program increases track may become yet another outstanding team for the already astonishing St. Patrick athletic program.

Possibly the most successful season of any Shamrock team in history was enjoyed by the water polo team. Although the team's goal was the state title, the team took third becoming the only team in St. Pat's athletic history to reach the semifinals in state competition. The team defeated their first two opponents and then met Oak Park in the semifinal round. In that game, the Shamrocks lost 10-9 in a very close and controversial game. The team then defeated their next opponent by five goals thus taking third place in state competition.

The Shamrocks practiced hard every day during the season, but the hard work went beyond the season. Most of the varsity team members competed in a winter park district league and play for a prestigious travelling team in the summer.

The varsity squad was dominated by seniors, although junior Jim Lynch was co-captain with Sr. Joe Ozimek. Four of the varsity starters received personal accolades. Goalie Jim Lynch and leading scorer Joe Ozimek received first team All-State honors. The hard nosed defenseman Dave Zahn received second team All-State honors and sharpshooter Jeremy Walsh took home an Honorable Mention award.

Coach Brian Glorioso has built a strong water polo program at St. Pats. The Frosh/Soph team competed on a Junior Varsity level and performed admirably with a 9-7 record. The freshmen and sophomores have vital experience to bring to next year's varsity squad in hopes of catching that first in State goal.

ST. PAT'S NEW DYNASTY !

TENNIS

Joining Water Polo in the game of conference domination is St. Pat's newest dynasty — Tennis. At the start of the season, Coaches Joe Schmidt and Sid Manalo had a number of modest goals: improve the doubles teams, qualify for state, and win the conference. One by one, the team blasted through opponents and desimated conference teams. Their list of accomplishments is seemingly endless. Some of them are: 3 players qualifying for state

Robert Jimenez, Luca Serra, and Kevin Abruzzino; winning the conference; and taking conference in 1st singles, 2nd singles, 1st doubles, and 2nd doubles.

The only flaw of the dream season came in a close loss to Marist. So what was the magic idea taught by Coach Joe Schmidt — "Play hard, up to your ability . . . enjoy yourself." The team worked ardently by participating in off-season tournaments. According to Coach Schmidt, "Better competition through a tougher schedule and a lot of hard work paid off."

The future you ask? Well, two of the three state qualifiers are returning with several others of this years conference champions. This is a definite "super team" at St. Pats and things can only get better. Congratulations to an incredible team and Good Luck in future seasons!!!!

1986 — A year of scandal. A year that brought the demise of a church organization, a lieutenant-colonel, and a presidential hopeful. With these downfalls came the introduction of three beauties into the eyes of the media. Chicago lost its first black mayor and mankind received a glimmer of hope at the summit talks. In the early months of 1988 we witnessed the Winter Olympics in Calgary. Here now is a brief recap of some of the bigger news items of 1987-88.

Oliver North and John Poindexter vs. George Schultz.

"IRAN — GATE"

First Watergate, now "Iran — Gate". Following along the ways of its predecessor, Iran-Gate came as the second scandal in two decades. A Lebanese magazine published an article telling of the U.S.'s selling of arms to Iran in exchange for influence by the Iranian government to retrieve six American hostages being held in Lebanon. The money from the arms was put in a Swiss bank account to be later given to the Contras in Nicaragua. The scandal hit the American press when an investigation revealed one paper from 250,000 others that were destroyed.

A joint committee on Capitol Hill heavily questioned National Security Advisor John Poindexter, Lieut. Colonel Oliver North, and retired Air Force Major Richard Secord, the big guns of the operation. After constant pressure from the public, North and Poindexter devised the idea to sell arms to Iran. The money to go to the Contras directly conflicted with a statement from Congress stating that the U.S. would no longer send money to aid the Contras.

The hearings were broadcast live throughout the country. After several days of trials, numerous inquisitions, and countless defending statements, only three faced possible indictment. These three are Oliver North, Richard Secord, and John Poindexter. This scandalous episode marred the trust of the people in our government. Numerous people proclaimed Oliver North a national hero but regardless of who's right and who's wrong it was another darkened chapter in the scandalous 1987.

PROBLEMS FOR P.T.L.

Jim and Tammy Bakker — fallen leaders of the P.T.L.

1987, saw the demise of the P.T.L. (People That Love) after Jim and Tammy Bakker, the group's controversial leaders, claimed bankruptcy on June 12. Jerry Falwell, the Bakker's successor, announced or pleaded to T.V. viewers that the P.T.L. needed $1.75 million by July 31 or it would be forced to stop broadcasting its "born again" message.

The whole problem began when former P.T.L.

president Jim Bakker admitted his sexual endeavors with Jessica Hahn, a New York church secretary. Bakker also paid $265,000 in hush money. After Bakker's admission, Hahn agreed to tell her story to Playboy as well as posing nude for an undisclosed amount of money.

Despite all of the scandals, control of the P.T.L. continued to roar on. Even though a large financial debt overhangs the P.T.L., its daily T.V. show and Heritage U.S.A. theme park bring in sweet rewards. Furious court battles rage on to see if Jim Bakker will be reinstated as the P.T.L. president. One person who can be thankful for the P.T.L. scandals is Jessica Hahn. Her career is now taking-off after emerging on to the media spotlight.

GARY HART — STEPS OUT OF THE RACE

Another voluptuous blonde brought forth the downfall of another prominent male figure. Gary Hart dropped out of the presidential race when reporters told the public that Hart spent a weekend in Washington with a blonde woman. This woman is Donna Rice, a twenty-nine year old University of South Carolina graduate and beauty contest winner.

The two met early in '87, at a New Year's Eve party. The two then met again in March while yachting with one of Hart's friends. The two exchanged phone numbers and Hart began to call Rice frequently.

A Miami reporter received an anonymous tip that Rice was flying to Washington to meet with Hart. A few reporters joined in a stakeout of Hart's townhouse. The reporters sighted Hart leaving his home with the woman and return late in the evening. The two were not spotted leaving his house until late next day. Hart noticed that men were staking him out and was eventually confronted by reporters whereupon he denied all accusations of adultery.

This episode left Hart desimated which lead to his dropping from the race. But recently, Hart rejoined the race stating that all people make mistakes once in awhile. Nonetheless he is always confronted with questions of his tryst with Donna Rice and his large debt leftover from his 1984 presidential campaign. As for Donna Rice, this has brought her much publicity. She currently appears in stints on "Miami Vice", "Dallas", and "One Life to Live" and otherwise is doing quite successful. The question now for Mr. Hart is — are people willing to forget about his episode with Donna Rice?

SUMMIT TALKS MAKE HISTORY

Mikhail Gorbachev and Ronald Reagan sign the I.N.F. treaty.

1987, amidst the many scandals, revealed a glimmer of hope for the people of the world. This hope came in the form of a reduction of arms between the Soviet Union and the United States. The signing of the I.N.F. treaty, which called for the reduction, took place at the Wasling Summit on December 15, 1987. The signing marked the first time the two Superpowers have agreed on an arms reduction.

At first, it seemed questionable, Reagan talked about human rights and religion and it became a heated argument when Reagan assailed the Soviet Union's policies regarding the not letting of Jews emigrate into other countries.

When things finally simmered down, Ronald Reagan and Mikhail Gorbachev addressed the most pertinent issue which was the I.N.F. treaty. The I.N.F. treaty proposes to eliminate all intermediate-range nuclear missiles. At the close of the treaty, the two signed the document embedding their names into the annals of history.

Besides the I.N.F. treaty, several other topics were discussed. Other matters, including the strategic arms reduction talks as well as conventional and chemical weapons limitations, rounded out the agenda. All three subjects were discussed and another meeting, to possibly sign a treaty reducing weapons, is tentatively scheduled for May of 1988. If these two Superpowers remain in good standing with each other and follow along these preliminary steps, this world could be a much safer place to live.

HAROLD WASHINGTON — FALLEN LEADER

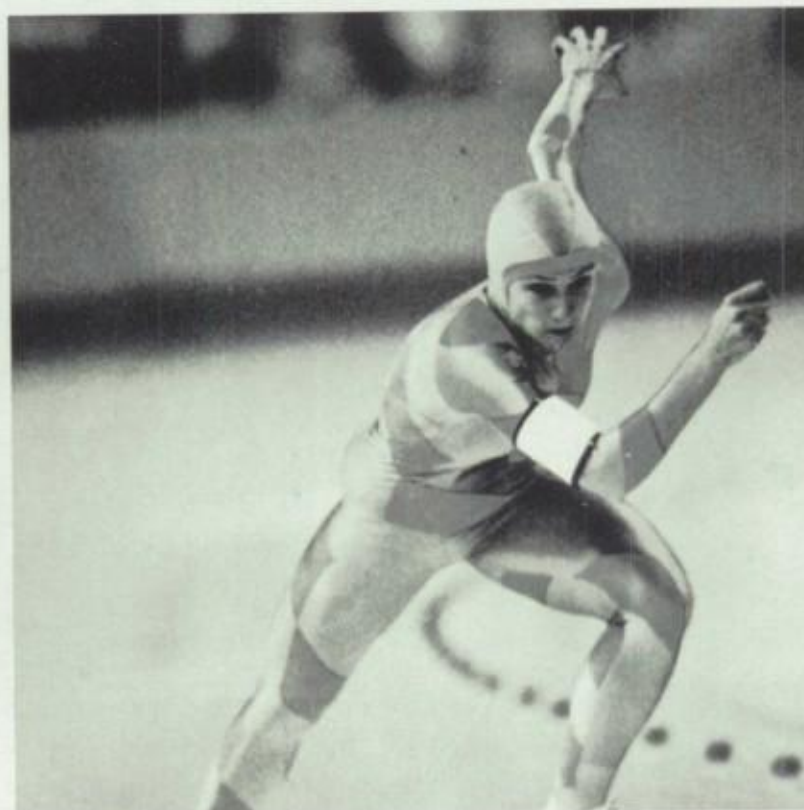

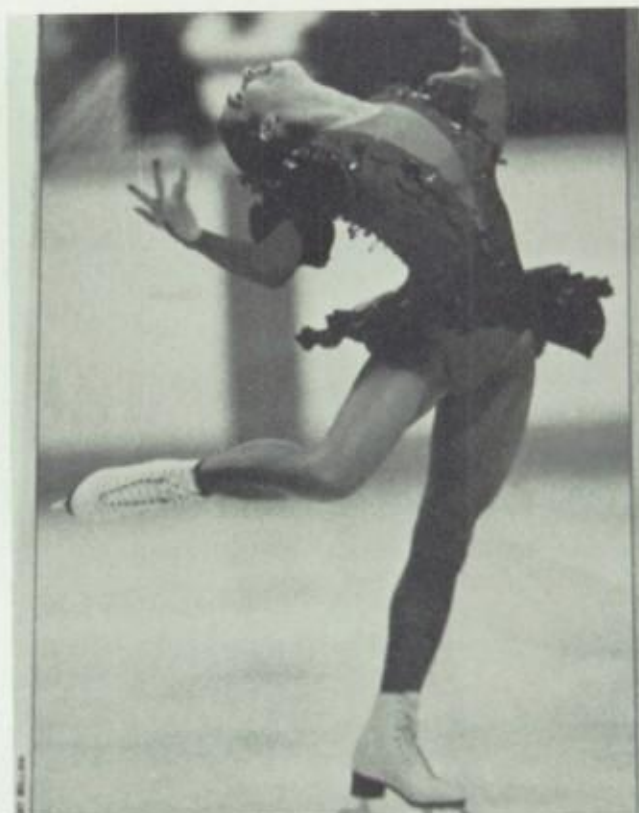

In any human situation, death is a shocking reality, yet at times its effects drive the living to extremism. On November 26, Mayor of Chicago, Harold Washington, died. This event we all know about now, and probably look back on in a way which has been influenced by factors that we are not even aware of. The initial shock, followed by many not-so-sorrowful "Northwest-side — contentions", then followed by the nationwide "canonization" of this man, may strike the passive observer as being somewhat paradoxical. The repercussions of this man's death should not have been a wild roller coaster ride, but rather, a sense of accepting loss.

Harold Washington was a man, and being so, he possessed both strong aspects and human faults. As Chicagoans — as Christians — we must pay him due respect. Washington must be accepted for what he was and one should at least try to realize the forces, both political and social, that acted upon him. Racial passions — on both sides — should be set aside in a brief moment of respect. After all, how can the "city of big shoulders" remain so when it is passionately divided, even until the death of its elected leader?

School(skool) n. — a place or institution for teaching and learning. Maybe so, but a kid can only stand so many nagging teachers, late assignments, and impossible tests. After a tough day, a student needs someway to unwind, and the organizations here at St. Pat's do that. There are many organizations here to chose from. One can delve into the realm of science, sample foreign foods, experience the pressures of journalism, learn about the past, or experience the future. Whatever the organization, it supplies a student with a break from a tedious work day.

Hard Work And Determination

Enables The Yearbook To Pull Through Once Again

A decade from now, you'll open this book and smile. There will be pictures you'll laugh at, faces you haven't seen in years, and a lot of great memories. People always say, "these are the best times of your life", and the yearbook is the one thing that captures all your high school memories. Many people take the yearbook for granted, never thinking about the great deal of work involved. Yearbook is a very accurate term for the book, because the staff works year round. As the new school year began last August, so too did preparation for the Shamrock. Work didn't end until well into the summer, making it a year long project.

The yearbook staff worked diligently under the leadership of editor-in-chief Joe Donati and moderator Mr. Doug Muir. Senior Mark Rzokiewicz provided valuable experience throughout the long year. A few other dedicated individuals contributed to the great success of the yearbook. Despite the contributions of these people, the major problem once again was lack of student involvement. The few people that were on the staff had to write, design, edit, and find pictures for nearly every page. Many people complain when the yearbook is late, and yet they do nothing to help out. The yearbook is a great way of showing school support while learning about writing, designing, and computer use. Next year we can only hope that some new interest in the yearbook will be found. This year the staff had to work under extremely difficult conditions and barely finished on time, often exceeding deadlines. The few experienced members often had to help others while trying to finish their own work. Taking all of these factors into account, the staff did a remarkable job. So read on and enjoy, but remember those dedicated individuals who made the one high school book that you won't burn or re-sell.

History Club

Gets Students Involved

The history club is a unique alternative to the usual extra-curricular activities offered at St. Pats. This club gives students the chance to apply what they have learned in the classroom to specific physical references such as historical sights. This years, members visited the Newberry Library to see the Northwest Ordinance document on exhibit and to tour this exclusive reference building. Other activities included visiting the Historical Society, touring the Pullman District, having two gym nights and sponsoring the annual D.C. trip. The club only meets to plan and partake trips, yet it has attained a strong following and much support. This support, coupled with Mr. Renner's hard work has given the history club the gumption to preserve.

Math Club

Mixes Math With Fun

The Math Club is one of those unsung organizations here at St. Patrick. Membership has been improving lately, and soon many people will realize the importance of this club. The Math Club presents a rare opportunity to learn valuable math skills while having some fun along the way. During the meetings the members work on difficult math problems dealing with a particular theme; be it logic, sets, functions, etc. Then, once a month, the team attends a math meet which consists of individual, team, and oral competition. The Math Club tops off the year with its annual gym night. This year, there was a joint gym night with the Notre Dame Math Club. So anyone with a some math skills that likes having fun should look into the Math Club.

Looks For More Involvement

Guten Tag, Leute. Wie Geht's? Yes, the German club is alive and well here at St. Pats. Under the fearless leadership of Mrs. Edith Vandervoort, the German club has overcome many obstacles to make a lively and educational environment for those interested in the language.

The purpose of the German club is, basically, to enhance what the students learn in the classroom, and to learn more about German culture than one can in the average textbook. The club tries to make German fun and interesting.

The German club officers for the 87-88 school year consisted of Jon Van Bethemas president, Joe Dreieras vice president, and Jerry Cichon as secretary/treasurer. "We would like to see more kids stick with German all four years, because it's worth it," one German club official said. "We need more people to get involved."

Mrs. Vandervoort points out some interesting facts about Germany to Andy Chu and Jerry Cichon.

Large Involvement Makes French Club Fun

The French Club enjoyed a very successful year under their new moderator, Ms. Carol Chiparo. Many activities were planned throughout the year, the first being the croissant breakfast. Students were able to eat delicious croissants while listening to authentic French music, which gave a real French atmosphere to the entire event.

The big event for the club occurred just before Christmas vacation. Along with the other foreign language clubs, the French Club participated in the annual Christmas party. Each of the clubs were able to share a little culture with each other, and the French Club sang a few carols in French. With so much participation and enthusiasm, the French Club looks to have a great future.

The Computer Science Club, as in years past, has played a vital role in encouraging students to learn about and use computers. Many students join the club in order to gain a greater knowledge of computers for use in the future. Others simply want to have some fun while learning about computers. The moderator, Ms. Joanne Gurdak, gives assistance to anyone who needs to use the computer lab, club member or not. By making a variety of games and application programs (word processing, banner printing, etc.) available, she serves the entire school. Club president, Mike Williams, and vice-president, Gary Zalesny, organized the 20-odd members for various activities. This year, the entire club wrote a "slide-show" recruitment disk for Mr. Catalano, to distribute to local grade schools. This is just one example of what the club does, and how important it is for the entire school.

Chess Club

Makes The Right Moves

Many students at St. Patrick may not be aware of the activities of the Chess Club; nevertheless, a very prosperous season was enjoyed by the team. The club consists of about 9 members, led by juniors Myron Mychal and John Eaton, and senior Greg Bennett. Practice is not mandatory, but many of these dedicated individuals practice for about one hour three times a week. There are not many members in the club compared to other schools, and greater participation could improve the team's chances in the future. Despite the small membership, the team did surprisingly well, finishing with a 6-2 record in conference. John Eaton played brilliantly and brought home first place in conference. Congratulations and adulations are due this unheralded team for a great season.

The Pep Band Starts Off On Great Note

Eleven young men, with the help of Mr. Joseph Schmidt and (coach) Terry Grossburg, started a music program this year at St. Patrick. The school had been without a music program for a long time, and Mr. Schmidt felt that it was about time to start one. The band members were from all four grade levels, but they all worked very well together. Freshman Jim Leber said that the attitudes of each member were positive and encouraging. "The dedication of the students makes me very happy . . . I mean if you get here at 7:30 a.m. and stay until 8:25 a.m. you must really like what you're doing," said Mr. Schmidt with a smile of satisfaction. During their first practice, the band members were tested and ranked on their playing ability. During the season, special practices were sometimes held at the homes of band members. Normal practices were held on Mondays and Thursdays before school on the gym stage. At first, the band was very rough and needed a lot of hard practice. By the end of the year, the hard practice really showed. In the future, the band will be bringing some great music to various school activities.

As Students Offer Support

Students Offering Support (S.O.S.) gives peers the opportunity to be better leaders and to give support to others by applying what they learned in their ministry course to their everyday life. In order to become a member of this "network", students must complete the Peer Ministry course. Led by Ms. Fitzgerald and Brother Leo, the course taught students skills and leadership. The group learned from guest speakers such as lawyers, psychologists, and social workers. The group also took a trip to the Northbrook Teams Course, where they learned to communicate better and to work as a group. The group also presented the S.O.S. ministry to other Cook County teenagers. S.O.S. now has approximately thirty-one students who have taken the course. One reason for the growth of the group is that many students enjoy helping out fellow students. The group has certainly helped out the St. Patrick community.

One of the most important organizations at St. Patrick is the Photo Club. Without this club, neither the yearbook nor the newspaper could exist. This year, the club was headed by Br. John Blease, who brought valuable experience to the staff. Although there was a shortage of members, a few dedicated photographers worked twice as hard to ensure a good year. The main purpose of the photo club was to teach the fundamentals of taking and developing photographs. A few experienced members were provided with time and equipment to enhance their photographic and dark room skills. Membership in the Photo Club is a year-round service, because photographers must be present at nearly every school function. Because so much depends upon the Photo Club, each member must make sure to provide high-quality work.

First Ever Ski Club Hits The Slopes With Great Success

The Ski Club was a new activity at St. Patrick for the 1987-88 school year, and it enjoyed a great deal of success in its first season. The club started off the new year to a flying start in January with its first trip to Pine Mountain located in Iron Mountain, Michigan. The highlights included a two day stay, free meals, and free lift tickets. The group consisted of about eighteen members, as well as moderator Mr. Robert Krupp. Because of the growing popularity of the club, Mr. Krupp hopes that it will soon become an official organization. Many different types of skiing are available for members, so both beginner and advanced skiers can have fun. Lessons are available on ski trips, so even the worst skier can learn how to fly down the hills within hours. The Cheerleaders Bring Noise And Excitement To The Games

One of the most important elements in any sporting event is the home court advantage. Once again this year, the St. Patrick Cheerleaders helped provide that edge for the basketball and football games. Many close victories were won in the closing moments of the game, when fan involvement is most crucial. This is when the cheerleaders were at their best, bringing the crowd to its feet with roaring cheers. While enjoying the game, most fans do not realize the difficult training the cheerleaders must go through. The tryouts are rigorous since only an elite group of individuals are allowed to become St. Patrick Cheerleaders. After surviving the tryouts the girls continue to practice two nights a week throughout the year. During practice, the cheerleaders must work on both new and old cheers until near perfection. So next time the game is on the line, remember whose right their cheering.

The newspaper has the duty of reporting to the school all of its, and other, happenings. Although the staff consisted of only a few dedicated members this year, they came out with many exciting and well thought out issues, much to the thanks of Editors Tim Lykowski and Bill

Kuczek. "We did, however," according to Tim Lykowski, "deplete our budget very early in the year, which held us back from having an issue a month for the entire year. As for the future of the Green and Gold Newspaper, Assistant Editors-in-Chief, Mark Burgraff and Steve Boudreau, have some inspiring words. "We have high hopes for the future of the newspaper. Academic Team

Enjoys Finest Season Ever

This past year marked the formation of the St. Patrick Academic Team. Approximately twenty students joined the team in October, but the number gradually dwindled to just seven. Despite the inexperience and small membership, the team enjoyed a good season overall. Finishing the regular season with just one defeat, the dedicated group advanced into the second round of state playoffs before losing in a very close match.

The team practiced before and after school a few days a week. Mr. Renner, the modera-

Senior Year — An End and a Beginning

The most exciting day in high school for seniors, relatives and friends alike is graduation.

Senior year — the apex of a student's long journey through school. As well as being a closing it opens a myriad of options to choose for the future. Seniors journey through their final year with an air of anticipation for that final day. Gung ho at the start of the year then a silly phenomenon called "Senioritis" strikes even the most devout bookworm. Seniors awake to the reality of it being the last month of the final year. With that in mind Seniors seek to play those last pranks and joke around with buddies while tossing their books into a dark corner. Teachers become frustrated that students are blowing off their classes. Senior prom then roles around and it's the last joyous occasion together before graduation. Then comes Final Exam Day the last time a senior will sweat out a class in high school. Finally it's graduation night — the climax — but remember "it's not the closing of a book but merely the opening of a new chapter." C. Coulombe

PAT PAYNE NAMED NATIONAL MERIT FINALIST

Senior Pat Payne was named National Merit Finalist on February 8, 1988. Pat had to meet very rigorous requirements in order to be considered as a finalist. This placed him in an exclusive group which represented .5 percent of American High School Seniors.

Pat is one of 13,500 highly qualified finalists being considered as one of 6,000 Scholars who may be awarded one of a possible 1,800 National Merit Scholarships valued at $2,000.

Pat Payne is on the wrestling team, is a member of the National Honor Society and is an honor roll student. Good luck to Pat at College and in the future.

Up Up And Away!!

An ominous silence passed over the crowd as a light breeze swept through the trees. Suddenly a tremendous wall of green and yellow balloons began to rise in the the gray sky.

The crowd erupted, each hoping his balloon would travel the furthest. Each had fifty bucks to win and only fifty cents to lose. As the last balloon disappeared into the eastern horizon, the crowd dispersed. It's hard to believe that some of those travelled for nearly a week.

Little by little, letters of rescued balloons begin to trickle in. In the end, one was sent from Rockingham, Vermont by Paul Muzzey. It happened to be the 1st Annual Balloon Race winner. Sean Maguire was the proud owner and recipient of the fifty dollars, and Paul receives ten dollars for mailing in the winning balloon.

"TWO ARMS"

It was a year of upsets in arm wrestling and tug-a-war. With reputations at stake, the modern day gladiators took their places across from each other. With muscles flexing they locked hands and prepared to battle. Veins bulged and tendons strained but in the end only one could win. The victors were Freshmen: Reuben Serrano-Lwt., John Capesius-Mwt. and Ted Zatos-Hwt. On the sophomore level they were: Sam Troumpoucis-Lwt., John Sbertoli-Mwt. and Kevin Toman-Hwt. For the juniors they were: Damon Santoro-Lwt., Pat Leyden-Mwt. and Kevin Beveridge-Hwt. Finally the senior champions were: Mike Dixon-Lwt., Kirk Strauss-Mwt. and Bill Freeney-Hwt. Then the hords from Hades take the field. One homeroom to go against another. A contest where strength and endurance is the name of the game. Give an inch and the other team will take a foot. Once you begin to slide, it's all over. Again, only the strong survive. Those who survived were Freshmen homeroom 203, Sophomore homeroom 204, Junior homeroom 205 and Senior homeroom 103.

PRESIDENTIAL HOPEFUL COMES TO ST. PAT'S

United States Senator Paul Simon, former newspaper publisher and author of several books, was a special guest at the annual St. Patrick Corned Beef and Cabbage Dinner.

Invited to the event by St. Pats teacher, Mr. Dan Renner because of his interest in education, he spent about an hour shaking hands and talking with parents and faculty.

A leading presidential candidate at the time, Senator Simon brought with him some unexpected guests which included a platoon of Secret Service Agents and news reporters.

The event was well publicized and preceded the overwhelming victory Senator Simon enjoyed in the Illinois presidential primary.

"Senator, my husband has a tie just like yours."

JUNIORS

Being a Junior can be a very trying experience. You have gone through the majority of your high school experience, but still have one long year to look forward to. You've passed through the relative childlike years of your Frosh. and Soph. years, and have matured a little. You are sitting through your third year of English and wish it were your last.

SOPHOMORES

Its the life of a sophomore, a time when academics are easy but student life is hard. There really aren't any reasons why the teachers make it easy, but then, of course, who cares. What is tough is the life of a student. It is hard to find a good social status during the sophomore year. He is caught between superiority and whimpdom. Oh, the happiness of not being a freshman is such a relief, but the depression of not being an upperclassman is a drag. Thats what makes it so difficult.

Students Struggle Between Academic and Athletic

Playing on a varsity team often presents itself as quite a challenge, but when sophomores face this challenge, the demands become greater. However, playing on a varsity squad as a sophomore offers greater advantages.

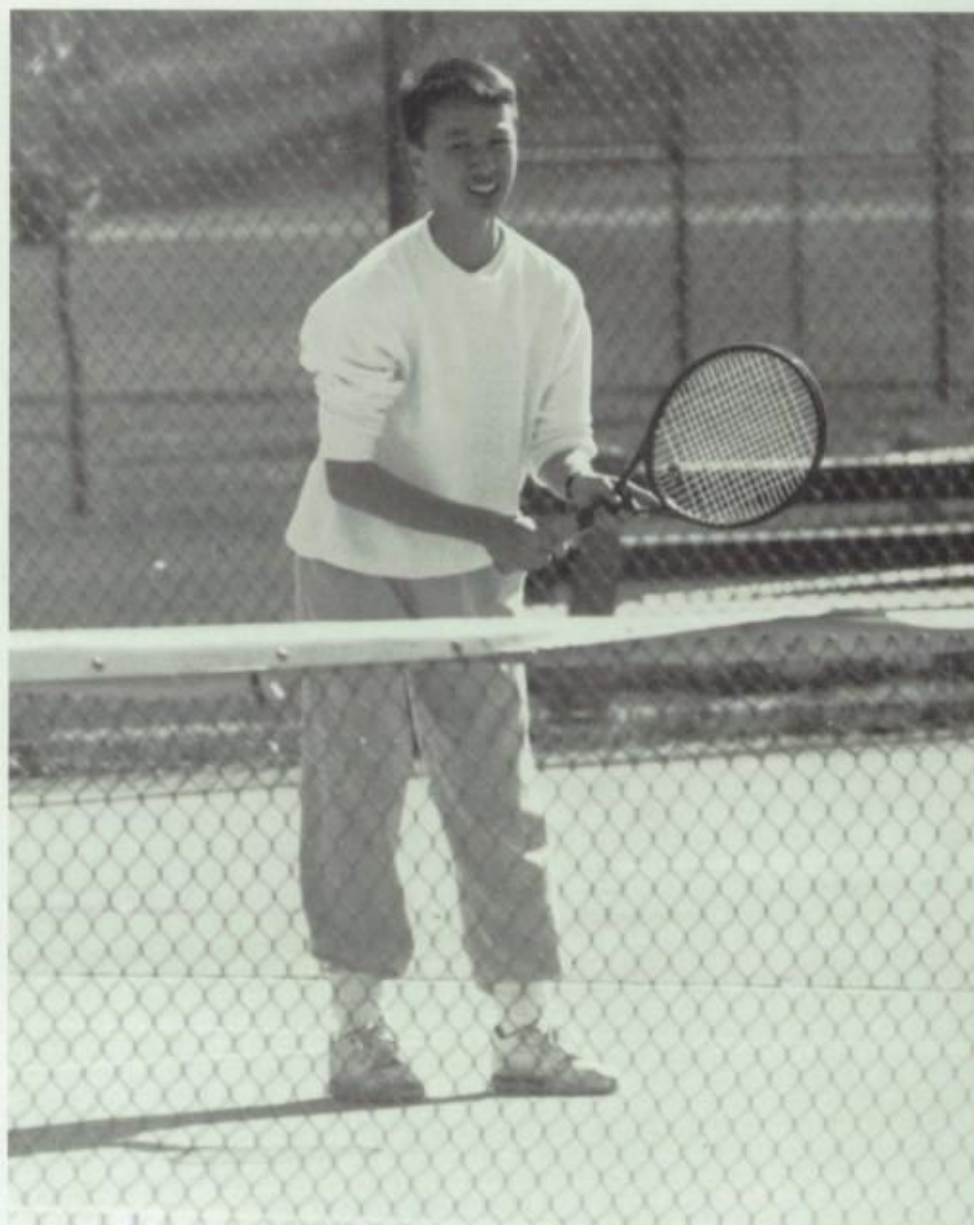

John Jimenez and John Leyden, two sophomores who play on varsity squads at St. Pats, try to overcome their obstacles and take advantage of their opportunities. Mental status becomes important. Sometimes, pressure from "the outside," or other students, may build up, but "you can't let it get to your head." Practice time may not increase, compared to frosh/soph practices, yet the activities differ. "Frosh/soph practices basically stress fundamentals of the game. Varsity practices become more serious and intense," says Leyden. Jimenez adds, "When you're playing varsity you know all your matches really count." He also includes, "Often, people may set high expectations for you because you may have more talent." Because they face better competition, "your game must improve." Though these obstacles may be difficult to overcome, benefitting aspects are also involved. Playing on a varsity squad as a sophomore gives these athletes one extra year of experience on varsity level. This helps prepare for senior year, the "big year," which Jimenez describes as "a year when you really have the chance to prove yourself." Although these athletes become very involved in their game, they also maintain excellent grades. Fitting practices, games and homework into a schedule becomes very difficult, but "you learn to budget your time."

So Leyden and Jimenez competing on varsity level face many obstacles, yet they encounter many benefits.

Hottest Concerts of the Year

Do you remember getting up early to go stand at a ticket window to get good seats at a concert? Do you remember getting there late, having to face the line that stretched to Cleveland? Do you remember finally getting to the window and finding out that they were sold out, but scalpers had reams of tickets at ten times face value? All of these were steps in trying to attend a concert. Some of our favorite bands have put on incredible shows for us, bands such as Def Leppard, Pink Floyd, Bruce Springsteen, and U2 rocked us at the Rosemont Horizon. The Monsters of Rock concert, by Van Halen, left the audience in awe and their ears ringing at Alpine Valley, while INXS jammed to a sold out audience at Poplar Creek.

The concerts of the past year have appeased our musical appetite, but soon we'll be craving for more, more albums, more concerts, more T-shirts, more posters, . . .

Girls keeping with the music at a dance.

A Year of Success

In review, Joe Schmidt was a hit

The month of May marks the end of yet another school year, as well as a time for students to look back on their accomplishments in either the academic or athletic fields. Now is the time for reviewing past goals and planning future ones for the 1988-1989 school year. Evaluation of yourself and others at the end of a school year is a way of recognizing one's strong points as well as weaknesses, and therefore, the best person to evaluate in terms of accomplishments and goals reached would be first year principal Mr. Joseph Schmidt.

After 21 years at St. Pat's, including 15 years as Dean of Students, Mr. Schmidt took over the job of principal from Bro. Konrad Diebold and immediately set goals he wished to attain for this present school year.

One such plan he fulfilled was the starting of a pep band, which he says will continue to grow in upcoming years.

Another goal successfully completed was the revival of theatre here at school. Under the direction of Mr. Kirby Volz, Brighton Beach Memoirs was staged in the fall and Godspell in the spring.

A new Academic Team, A.C.T. Preparatory Course, and a balanced budget are also signs of a well run administration. Mr. Schmidt states, "The more we can be involved and continue to work with the teachers, the closer I get to my own goals."

Academics, especially in the areas of mathematics and writing, is a continued stress for Mr. Schmidt, "Simply put, that is the whole reason we are here. Above everything else, we have always made that extra emphasis on academics at all levels."

Becoming principal after being the Dean was also a challenge for Mr. Schmidt. As Dean, he was able to associate and work with the students more, a part of the job he purely enjoyed. Now, with a severe limit of his time due to his many responsibilities, he is unable to make as much contact with individual students as he would like. Nevertheless, he still cares about ideas students bring him, and continues working for programs which will benefit the school as a whole.

Probably the greatest accomplishment for Mr. Schmidt this year was his enthusiastic attitude he gave to school activities. Besides the low number of dances and what some consider to be the "Ice Cream Social" flop he tried his best in stirring up what little school spirit the student body seemed to have.

This was Mr. Schmidt's "rookie" year as principal, and when asked was he planning on staying, he happily remarked, "This is where I belong. I have no intentions on leaving."

We congratulate you Mr. Schmidt on finishing your first year as principal, and wish you many more successful years to come as chief administrator of St. Pat's

New principal, Joe Schmidt, works here with a student during the Scholastic Bowl competition for grammar school students.

This article was reprinted from the Green and Gold vol. LIX, No. 5.

FATHER AND SON

Team Up To Teach at St. Pat's

The 1987-88 school year brought about several new faculty members. Among them, a father and son team; Dr. Robert Krupp and Mr. Bob Krupp.

Dr. Krupp holds a Ph.D. from the Illinois Institute of Technology. He attended Annunciation grammar school and graduated from St. Mel's High School. Dr. Krupp teaches Honors and Average Physics in the Science department. His hobbies and interests include golfing, fishing, and cooking. His favorite music group is Otis and the Ups-and Downs, otherwise known as elevator music. Dr. Krupp brings a long tenure of teaching to his students.

Mr. Bob Krupp is the newest member of the Biology Department. He teaches two average Biology courses. He is a graduate from Illinois Benedictine College. He attended Our Lady of the Lake in Oswego, Oregon and Arthur E. Premm Oakdale, N.Y. grade schools. He went to high school at Connetquot High School Bohemia, N.Y. and Bethel High School in Bethel, Arkansas. As you can see, he has traveled quite a bit. He is the moderator of the Ski Club. His other interests include golfing, basketball, and softball. His favorite musical group is Squeeze.

Good luck to the Father-Son team in their teachings and their future at St. Pat's.

EDITOR'S ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

Well here it is! The book is finally done, the staff can finally get on with their summer vacations, and you (THE READER) can sit down with this excellent work of literature and conjure up some good memories. It has been an exceptionally long year with a lot too do and not enough people to do it. With a very small staff and having to spend the first couple months of the school year finishing the previous book, things looked bleak. However, thanks to a persevering staff, we were able to complete it only a few weeks off schedule.

I would now like to thank my staff for putting in too many hours and for sticking with something that seemed to never end: Mark Rzotkiewicz, Jerry Cichon, Leo Graziano, Tom Runtz, Tony Nowak, John DeFosse, and Gavin McMahon.

Special Thanks go to Mr. Doug Muir for putting up with us and giving us a hand when needed. Thanks to Tony Marasco and Bro. John Blease for supplying us with pictures. Also, thanks to Mr. Ken Nem-sick who answered our questions and kept us moving.

Thank you to my mom for putting up with many late nights and thanks to Christine Coulombe for help in typing and writing articles.

Finally, a hearty thank you to Saint Patrick H.S. — teachers, students, administration — because there never would have been a yearbook without you. Enjoy! — Joe Donati

CATCH THE WAVE

Sean Delahanty carefully dissects his frog in biology.

Pat "Smiley" Leyden knocks off Mr. Kirby Volz in the musical chairs competition during Spirit Week.

Dave Schultz is the sax-man on the newly re-instated St. Pats pep band.

Little do you realize, you have just gone through 166 pages of history. History is ever evolving, but this is the conclusion to another chapter of your life. For some, this was the year of their lives. For others, let's not rub salt in their wounds. Either way, you can't erase what happened.

Let's not end the year on a low note. The old saying goes, "There's always next year." If you were a social hermit, there's time to change that — get some pictures of yourself into next year's yearbook. If you got involved, get involved some more. There are plenty of clubs, sports, and activities that need student participation.

But heck, the main thing is to enjoy yourself. Hopefully by next year, things will change for the better for those on a highway to hell. To those who are having the time of their lives, show the others what they're missing. Remember, each year is another chapter in the novel of life. Things can always change because you are the author.

OPEN HOUSE DATES

Sunday, November 8, 1987

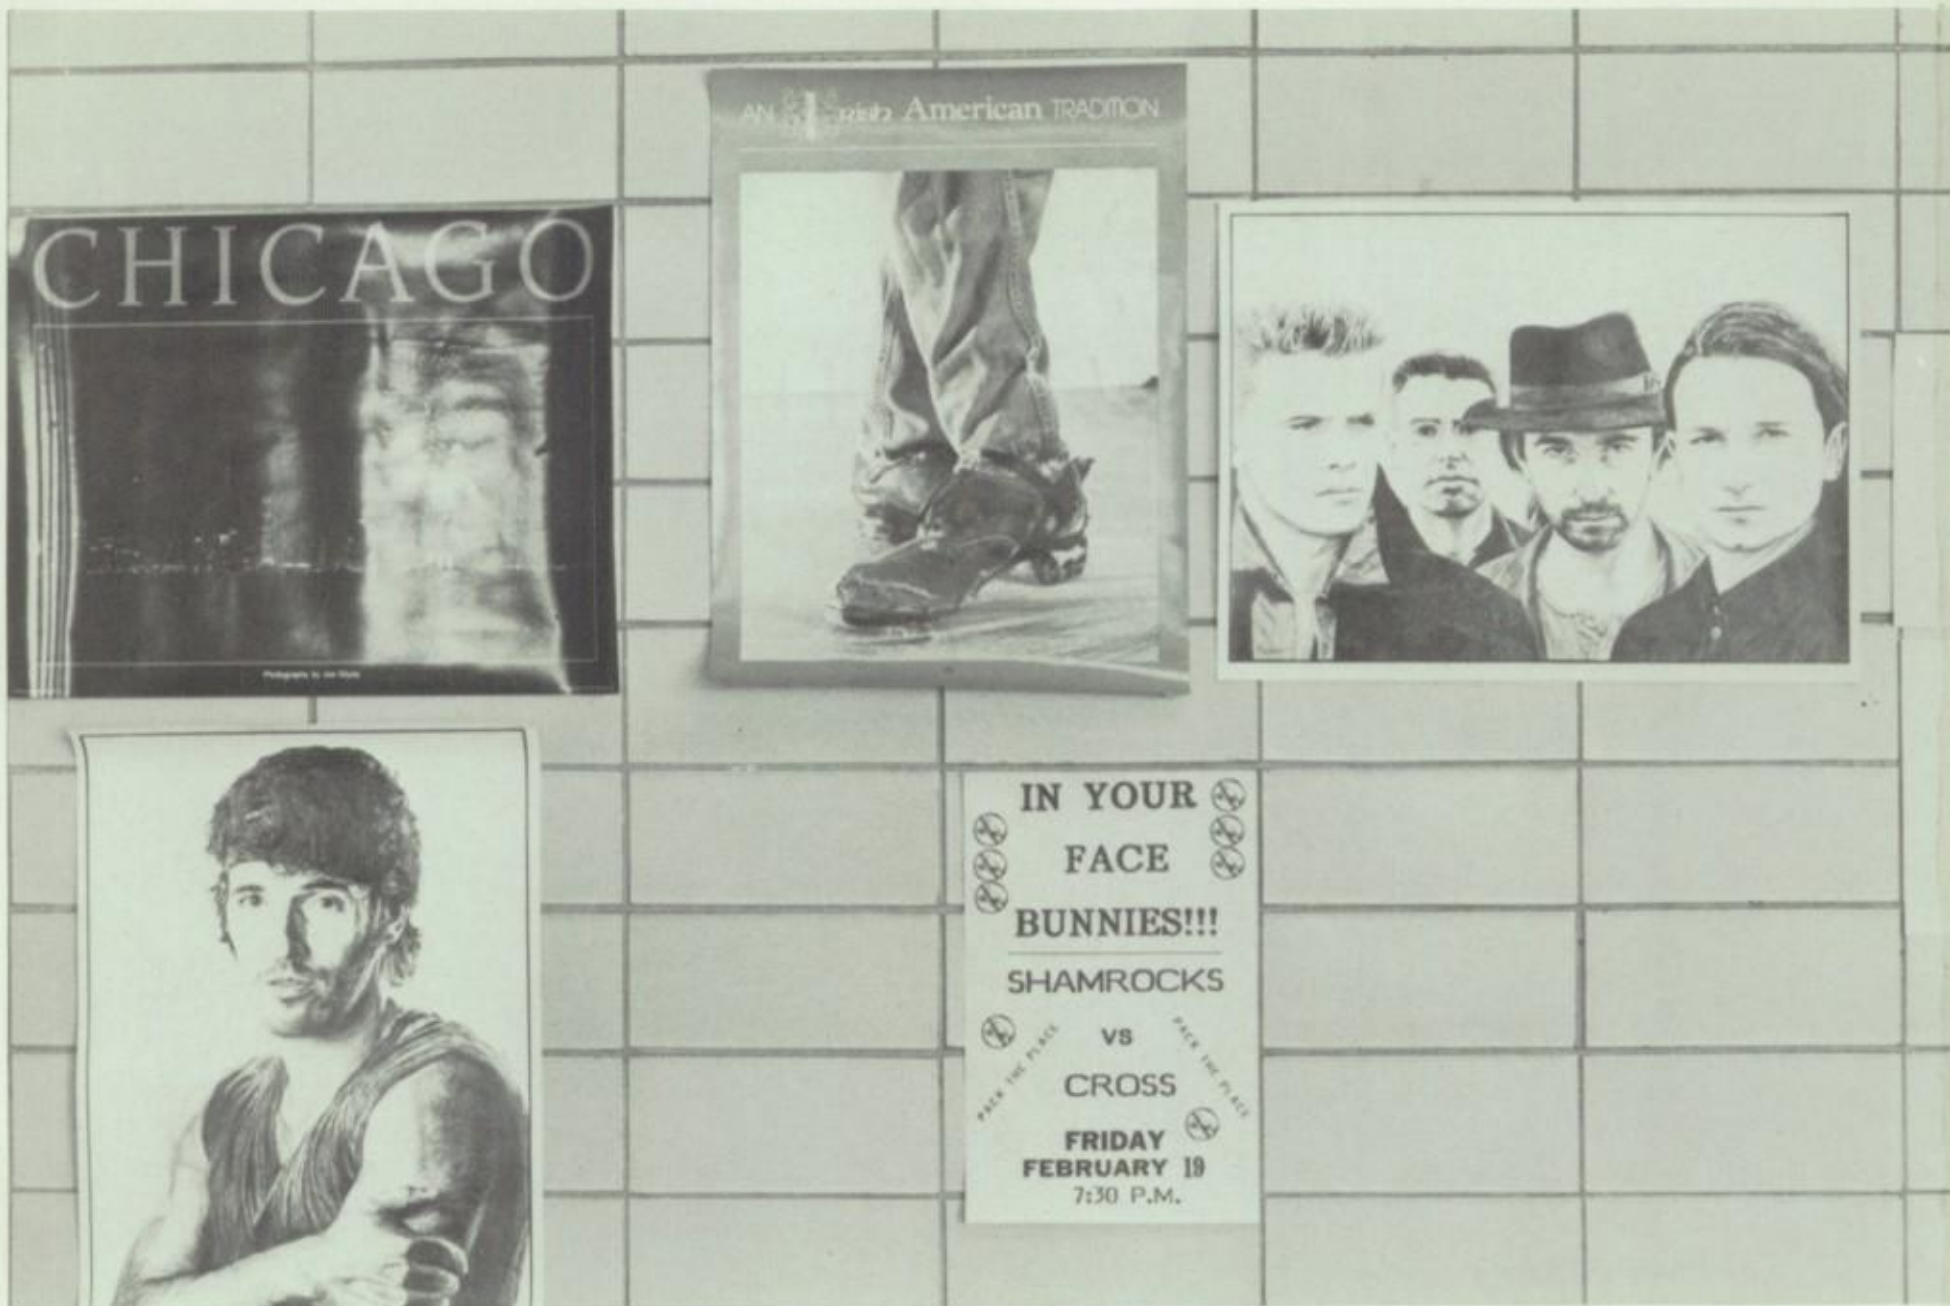

2:00 to 4:00 P.M.

Wednesday, December 9, 1987

7:00 to 9:00 P.M.

Biology always seems to get the most enthusiasm out of the sophomores.

St. Pats has always had a strong tradition of success, and hopefully the future will keep the tradition alive for years to come.

School's not all business.
